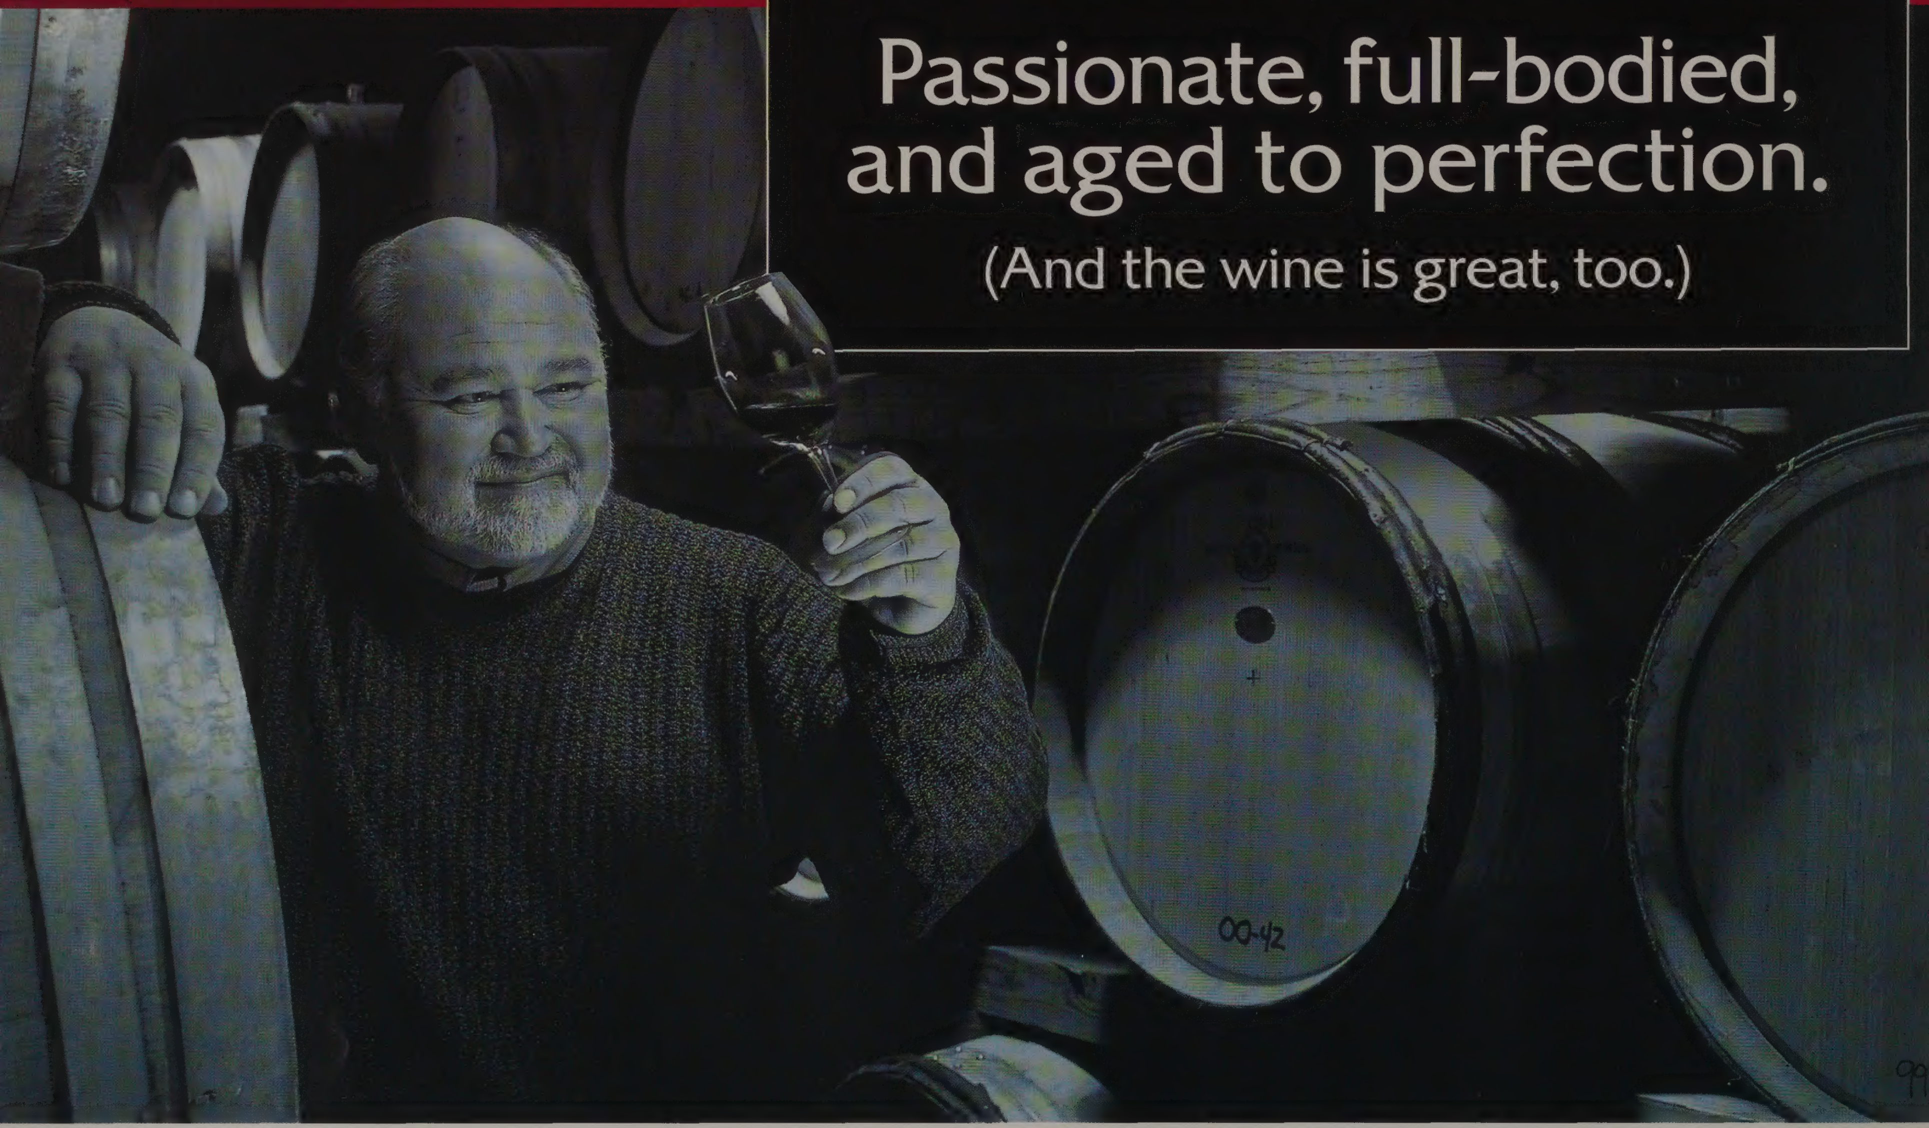
Galluccio Estate Vineyards



Passionate, full-bodied, and aged to perfection.

(And the wine is great, too.)

Meet Vincent Galluccio.

Just as a Stradivarius needs a gifted musician to make it truly sing, so too does a fine wine require a passionate presence to nudge its quality from merely excellent to exceptional.

At Galluccio Estate Vineyards, Vince is creating a special environment. One that has paid homage to the 16 year legacy of the award-winning Gristina vineyard while ushering in a new era of unprecedented vitality and sophistication to the Long Island North Fork wine growing region.

So, we hope the next time you're looking for something with a tantalizingly robust body and an excellent nose, you'll think of our Vince…so to speak.

Our patio and great lawn are open for your afternoon picnic or lounging pleasure.

PRE-SUMMER SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Hampton Sisters

East Hampton Chooses A Sister City – What About Westhampton Beach And Southampton?

By Dan Rattiner

Playa, Cuba, a beachfront town within the incorporated city of Havana, became the offical sister city to East Hampton last week. Papers were signed in Havana. More papers were signed at Town Hall in East Hampton.

> The sister city to Sag Harbor should be Key West, Florida. Both towns are funky, bohemian, with a brightly lit nighlife...

"Playa parallels East Hampton in many ways," said Supervisor Jay Schneiderman at the official signing. "It's a center for tourism, fishing, and the arts. Marinas and beaches are located there, as are a number of embassies and official residences."

Well, yes and no. In the old days before the revolution, Playa was a smart beachfront suburb of Havana, with beach clubs and marinas, private residences of wealthy Cubans and fashionable art galleries and restaurants. Now, however, the restaurants and galleries have been shut down (though recently they've begun a re-revivial), and though the beaches and the marinas remain, the private residences have all been taken over by the campaneros from the countryside, who, with Castro's blessing, are all ensconsed ten families to a mansion, with the wash hanging on the nearly collapsed pillars out front. Long Live the Revolution.

Politically, I think Playa, Cuba may be a good choice to be a sister city to East Hampton. (Take THAT, Fidel.) It also may be a good choice for tourism in Cuba, which is currently a hot, exotic, inexpensive and slightly dangerous place to go for a vacation. It may also even be helpful to the people who are living there, since the embargo, which was meant to counter the Castro dictatorship, has really fallen hardest on the citizenry. But in terms of it being just a place in another part of the world that looks and feels like this place, I don't think so. It has more of a feel of a kind of run down Miami Beach than an East Hampton, Long Island.

A good sister city for East Hampton, in my opinion, would be Aix en Provence. Located in southern France, it has an artist, Cezanne, a former resident, who is deified. (East Hampton has two — Jackson Pollock and Willem de Kooning.) It has a broad main street with stores on each side and giant trees overarching the road. It is several hours to Paris (we're two to Manhattan) and it

British Rock Star Sting, who has a house in the Hamptons, was given an award last Saturday in Washington for promoting cross-cultural understanding. The award was the 2001 Kahlil Gibran Spirit of Humanity award, and it was presented to him by Jordan's Queen Noor. Among those attending were Secretary of State Colin Powell, a frequent visitor to the East End.

Timothy McVeigh is allowed to invite five guests to his execution. He is inviting several attorneys, several who are unknown and writer Gore Vidal, who has been conducting a correspondence with McVeigh since McVeigh wrote to him after reading an article Vidal wrote in Vanity Fair in 1998 about the Branch Davidian FBI raid in Waco nine years ago. Apparently Vidal and McVeigh share similar views about the erosion of constitutional rights, at least about the Waco incident. Vidal is going. And will write about it, again for Vanity Fair.

Sisters

has lots of culture of its own — much of it provided by the University d'Aix, the oldest in France. (We have Guild Hall, the Ross School and Ashawagh Hall.)

Here are the sister cities I would recommend for some of our other towns.

SOUTHAMPTON. My recommendation would be Deauxville, where years ago French high society spent its summers. There's a great film festival in Deauville. If not Deauxville, then Cap d'Antibes on the Riviera. And if not Cap d'Antibes, then Palm Beach, Florida. Many residents of Southampton are on the Palm Beach, Aspen, Southampton circuit. But I wouldn't choose Aspen as a sister city, unless there is a 12,000 foot snow covered skiing mountain in Noyac I somehow missed.

MONTAUK. The sister city of Montauk should be Amity Island, the mythical "Hampton" in the movie JAWS. Montauk and Amity have much in common — a short summer season, motels, beaches, a tiny police force, a worried chamber of commerce and sharks. Indeed, the personality of the fishing boat captain in JAWS was modeled after a famous Montauk shark fisherman named Frank Mundus. Frank retired to Hawaii not long ago. Captain Quint got et.

Interestingly, the movie JAWS was modeled after the book of the same name written by Peter Benchley. If the movie "Amity" looks like Montauk (it was filmed on Martha's Vineyard), it was, in the book, located on the beach between Bridgehampton and East Hampton which are frequently mentioned throughout its pages. Today, Roy Scheider who plays Chief Brody in the movie, lives not far from where "Amity" was located in the book. So far, though, it's been shark free.

BRIDGEHAMPTON. If you drill a hole straight down from Bridgehampton through the center of the earth, you will come out in the Indian Ocean, with the nearest landfall the town of Augusta, Australia. I know this because Dan's Papers runs a contest every year called "How Far do Dan's Papers Travel?" People take the paper to the farthest location and mail it back to win a prize. The farthest from Bridgehampton, as it turns out, is Augusta. There are astonishing similarities between these two places. Augusta is a beach town, surrounded by potato fields and vineyards. It's Main Street is one block long. There are half a dozen restaurants on Main Street. The same is true, all of the above, in Bridgehampton. Unbelievable similarities? Sounds like the plot to an episode of the Twilight Zone.

SAG HARBOR. The sister city to Sag Harbor should be Key West, Florida. Both towns are funky, bohemian, with a brightly lit nightlife on Main Street, and two towering figures of literature that are revered. In Sag Harbor it is John Steinbeck. In Key West it is Ernest Hemingway. Both towns have beaches but none of them are worth a damn when compared to those on the ocean. And both towns have wharfs to watch the sunset. There is Mallory Square in Key West, Long Wharf in Sag Harbor. You get a better view at Mallory.

RIVERHEAD. For many years, I thought the sister city to Riverhead should be Anchorhead in the movie Starwars. This is the place, at the beginning of the movie, where they have that famous cafe scene and where they hire Han Solo (Harrison Ford) and his space freighter to help them elude the evil empire space cruisers. In both Riverhead and Anchorhead, everything comes in, and then everything flies out. Sort of a commercial hub. In recent years, however, Riverhead has changed. Tanger Mall opened up, Splish Splash opened up, the downtown got renovated, the Riverhead Aquarium opened up and last year more building permits were issued for Riverhead than in any town on the east end. Anchorhead, on the other hand, is still Anchorhead. I rented it again last week.

WESTHAMPTON BEACH. I have traveled a great deal but I haven't got a clue what the sister city to this place should be. St. John's, Maryland, on the eastern shore? It's a nice small town on the water, but there's no ocean. Booth Bay Harbor, Maine? Nelson, on the South Island of New Zealand? Readers are welcome to make suggestions about this one.

GREENPORT. Algeceris, Spain. Both have ferries and fishing boats, both are small, busy, waterfront towns with great restaurants and bars and both look out on something fabulous — Gibralter in the case of Algeceris, Shelter Island and the Hamptons in the case of Greenport.

SHELTER ISLAND. The sister island to Shelter Island should be Kiawah Island, South Carolina, the winter home of many who summer on Shelter Island. Both are in protected harbors, both have two golf courses, both are WASP central. ●

House On The Move

100 Year Old Rockefeller Mansion To Go To Sagaponack

By Dan Rattiner

One of the more difficult concepts for people new to this area to understand is that things, particularly historic things, were not always where they are now.

What a beautiful windmill, they say. It's just perfect overlooking that pond there.

Well, no. It's overlooking the pond since 1954. Before that it was in Sag Harbor. And before that it was in Amagansett. For awhile, somebody moved it out to Montauk. But the owner didn't like it. And so they moved it back. That was in 1781.

Why people got it into their heads that barns and houses and even stores could be moved around I do not know (a merchant turned the Sag Harbor General Store around 180 degrees in the late nineteenth century for some reason), but for a very long time it has been part of the east end culture.

With this as an introduction, I can now proceed to describe the events of the past forty eight hours here in Water Mill in the hopes that they make a little more sense than they otherwise might. It involves a building on the highway here called the St. James Inn.

This building, a 12 bedroom house, was originally built by a member of the Rockefeller family as a wedding present for his daughter. This was in 1894. It was a summer home. The bride and groom would come out from the City to the Water Mill Railroad Station, take a carriage ride two miles down the unpaved and dusty Montauk Highway, and there they were. The front faced out on the dirt road. The back faced out on Mecox Bay.

You might be anticipating that I am going to tell you this house traveled around four or five times in the last century, but that is not the case.

> The end of a huge steel I-Beam ripped through the wall... extending almost completely across the room before coming to a stop just next to Kennelly's head.

The Rockefellers moved out of the area. The depression came, the house became abandoned for awhile, and then a young black jazz musician named James bought the place and turned it into one of the most successful bootleg liquor joints and jazz clubs the east end has ever seen. This lasted until about 1964, after which James sold the St. James — except for the cottage on the water in the back —and it continued as a disco joint into the 1980s. After that, it shut down and became abandoned again, and to this day, with vines beginning to grow around it, has never reopened again.

Five years ago, a developer named Carole Konner bought the St. James. Carole has a history in these parts for buying places, fixing them up and reselling them. She's also successfully overseen several other large residential projects, though she has also had her failures. For example, she got an option on the Bridgehampton Race Track about ten years ago and tried, and failed, to get the place rezoned to become a golf course. She had to give up the option.

Anyway, here in Water Mill, her plan was to fix up the St. James, add another 20 rooms in a wing on the back, and make it into a gracious and charming residential inn of which the Rockefellers might be proud. She made her applications to the Town Planning Board, and after about two years of trying, during which time the St. James deteriorated even further, the town turned down her down.

Now there seemed nothing left to do but just tear the place down and start over afresh. She still owned the property. It was waterfront and highway front and they'd have to allow her to do something with it.

But to be honest, it broke her heart. Sadly, she made arrangements with a variety of antique dealers. One would buy the flying staircase, another would buy the fireplace mantelpieces, still another would buy the handcarved doors. The tearing apart of the place would begin this Thursday. After that, the bulldozers would come in.

Move

And then, around noon on Monday, unknown to Ms. Konner, a lunch took place at Bobby Van's in Bridgehampton between a friend of Ms. Konner's and Michael Bruno, a man who owns a former farmhouse and several barns, now converted to residential use, on the east side of Sagg Main Street in Sagaponack.

Bruno has had in mind moving the farmhouse, which currently sits in a low area, to the brow of a hill on the former farm property. He has permission to do that, and is currently preparing the hill by having dozens of beautiful full grown trees brought in and planted.

"It is great fun moving in these great big trees," he told his friend. "But what the site really needs is not really the farmhouse which is kind of plain, but a wonderful old mansion to perch next to them high up on that hill. Now that would be something. I'd like to do that someday."

That evening, Michael Bruno met Carole Konner who considered him just short of a gift from heaven. There would be no need to rip up the St. James. Bruno would save it. Konner said it was his to keep for free. And they shook hands. Then Konner got on the phone and called all the people who were going to be taking away all the valuable fixtures and details inside the Inn and told them everything had changed. The St. James was saved. All this took about an hour.

I spoke for a bit today with both Carole Konner and Michael Bruno, who cannot believe the speed at which all this is happening.

"This is a fabulous old building," Bruno told me. "I have no idea about the permits or anything at this stage. I'm just going to move it to Sagg Main and store it on the farm. We've got a house mover. He's taking care of all the details. He says we have to disassemble it into nine pieces. Then we put it back together again. We're moving it tomorrow."

In a separate phone call, I asked Carole what she knew about Michael Bruno, about whether he could afford this big project or not. She said she understood he was in the antique business, something to do with the internet.

Bruno confirmed this to me. Sort of.

"I have a web site called firstdibs.com," he said. "What we do is send our buyers out to fleamarkets and private auctions all over the world, and we buy things, take pictures of them and then post them on our site — you can get antiques and curios in a Paris flea market for about a third of what you would pay in the United States, and then we sell what we have bought to the trade, and we take a commission for our efforts."

I asked him about the farmhouse.

"We'll move it somewhere else on the property," he said. "There is lots of room. We could bring it nearer to the barns and the cottage. That would be nice."

Michael asked me if he thought there'd be any trouble getting any permits to do all this, and I told him not if I could help it. This would improve the area. And who wouldn't want to save the old Rockefeller estate after it had come thisclose to being torn down?

I remembered going to the St. James and winning a dance contest one evening in the living room turned dance floor of the old disco. My partner was just somebody I met at the bar. I never saw her again.

And I remembered my first meeting with Bob Kennelly, one of the legendary house movers in these parts — there was and still is a lively competition between house movers for the moving contracts — and I sat with him in the one story corrugated tin building that passed for his office there on County Road 39, and suddenly there was some shouting outside, and then the end of a huge steel I-Beam ripped through the wall about five feet up and began a slow slide across the room, moving a foot above the desk between us and extending almost completely across the room before coming to a stop just next to Kennelly's head. Kennelly didn't even pause in the conversation to take note of the event. He just continued on talking about whatever it was he was talking about.

So here we go again. Houses on the move. Nothing unusual about that in these parts. And another landmark saved, this time to be placed high on a hill.

James, I am told, is still around, though quite elderly, and recently moved from a small cottage at the back of the Rockefeller house to a new small cottage in Southampton.

Now here's a man, a musician, who has seen it all. ●

The United States Postal Service Begins To Move Boldly Where No Mailman Has Gone Before

By Dan Rattiner

The Post Office is considering a plan to eliminate Saturday mail delivery.

The United States Post Office may soon add a new kind of e-mail to the wide variety of services it currently offers its patrons. At the present time, tests are underway between the post offices in two cities — Tippecanoe, Idaho and Kalamazoo, Michigan to see if it is feasable.

"We feel it's time that we 'Get With It,'" said Glenda Stampmeister, a spokesperson for the post office.

For about a week now, patrons have been able to bring their letters down to the post office in Tippicanoe, give them to the postmaster there, and then, almost instantly, have them be available in Kalamazoo. What happens is that behind the scenes at the post office in Tippecanoe, a postal worker opens the letter, gives it to another postal worker sitting at a computer, and this second postal worker types in what is written and then sends it by e-mail to a computer in Kalamazoo. Here, a postal worker reads what is written on the screen, handwrites it out on a piece of stationery, folds it up and puts it into an envelope, then gives it to the mailman on the postal route it is addressed to who then delivers it.

> "We haven't yet worked out the details," Ms. Stampmeister said. "But we think there will be a special charge of about forty dollars per page."

"It is a specialized service that saves as much as two days off the delivery time," Ms. Stampmeister said. "A normal letter put in the mailslot in Tippecanoe would go through a sorter, be put in a truck that would take it to Boise, then down to the main western post office sorting center in Albequerque, New Mexico, then off to the regional center in Lansing, Michigan and then out to Kalamazoo. This saves all that. The route is direct."

Although there is less hefting of mail bags, less wear and tear on mail trucks, on the people in the sorting rooms, and on the asphalt out in the streets, there is a considerable premium the post office is going to charge for this service.

"We haven't worked out all the details," Ms. Stampmeister said. "But we think there will be a special charge of about forty dollars per page. It is something new. It requires a lot of typing and transcribing. And there are considerable new expenses involved, including computers, cable lines, software and of course training. Postal workers who are going to do this work will have to go through a special training program at our training center in Honolulu for a week."

ZippityZap Mail, as it is going to be called, is not for everybody. It is not for people who wish their letters to be written out, for example. And it is not for people who wish their letters to be confidential.

"We are producing a leaflet that explains all the ins and outs of ZippityZap Mail," Ms. Stampmeister said. "Customers will understand that at least four people in the ZippityZap department of the post office will be reading what they write. Though we don't think that is such a serious problem, we are addressing it. In our leaflet, we point out that people who develop film at photo stores get to see pictures of naked people and the like, some of whom are doing really weird things with one another. Still, there is a difference. Unlike at the photo shop, here in the post office, we are employees of the government. If we read something that talks about an interstate drug deal or the planting of a bomb or the overthrow of the government there will be consequences. Nobody is going to sit still for that.

"And to answer critics who want to only have their letters typed out, the leaflet states that all our transcribers WILL be trained in block printing, both all caps and upper and lower or even e. e. cummings style if that is what someone wants. We will also offer flowery romantic handwriting, bold and forçeful handwriting and nearly illegible. A choice of three. The choice is yours."

The experiment in Tippecanoe and Kalamazoo will last for the next month, during which time negotiations are expected to be completed with Thailand for a further experiment between Kalamazoo and the city of Timbuktoo.

"Imagine sending a letter instantaneously from Kalamazoo, Michigan to Timbuktoo, Thailand without even having to put an air mail stamp on it," Ms. Stampmeister said. "Country to country. Amazing. We are really 'Getting With It Here At the United States Postal Service.'" ●

The Usual Suspects?

Richard Gere, Mel Brooks, Aretha Franklin, Katie, P. Diddy Who And Johnnie Cochran

By Susan Simm

Here we go again. Traffic. Lines. Parking. Crowds. All the familiar joys of summer are almost upon us.

Despite this, for a long time now, the stars of the screen, the movers and shakers of Wall Street, the dwindling old guard and the "locals" have coexisted. And all has been fairly peaceful, save for the occasional scrape. Sometimes the rich and famous folk have locked horns over trivial things like property lines and tree placement, but mostly they come out to the East End to relax, enjoy the scenery and even manage, for the most part, to support local business.

But with the economy looking ominous and rental prices, well, let's just say they're a real estate broker's dream, who is coming out to join the party this year? And who isn't? And who cares? Rumors abound.

> Total bill: $325,000. That works out to $137 an hour... you still have to sleep at least six hours a night. That's $81,378... while you're not even conscious.

First, to set the record straight, former East Hamptonite Billy Joel just can't seem to stray too far from his beloved Peconic Bay. Although he did not buy land in North Sea, he has set his sights on Gull Island (asking price: 3.5 million) in the middle of Three Mile Harbor. Apparently, the deal is being held up by the negotiation of about 3 million conditions (one for each dollar?). Billy is also looking at property across from the island on the harbor's shore. What good is buying an island if you don't have a private dock on the mainland to launch from? Just ask Louis Bacon.

Heading north, no news yet about Johnnie Cochran looking for waterfront in Sag Harbor. Only rumors. And weak ones at that. Let's face it. Johnnie is a high-profile, charismatic guy. Don't you think we'd know if he were looking here? This is still a small town. It is not a rumor however that Spalding Gray recently purchased a new house in Sag Harbor. Our good fortune, too. Catch him at the Ross School this Saturday performing one of his inimitable monolgues.

In this land of moviestars and moguls, has small change become obsolete? Take $2.28, for example. What does this number represent? The price of a latte at Starbucks? A muffin from Barefoot Contessa? Wrong. It is the rate, per minute, to rent Fordune, the Southampton oceanfront estate built by Henry Ford II in the '60s, for the season (Memorial-Labor). Total bill: $325,000. That works out to $137 an hour. And even if you spend every minute at the manse, you still have to sleep at least six hours a night. That's $81,378 in rent while you're not even conscious. If you're still interested, too late. It's already rented. But if that's too rich for your blood, another oceanfront property has just rented for only $310,000 for the season. This works out to only $2.17 a minute. Still makes your cell phone bill seem like a bargain.

While $325,000 is stratospheric enough not to be believed, last summer an East Hampton oceanfront home reportedly rented for $500,000 (I know, you think I'm making this up). And you can buy it for a mere $21 million. $21 million? It's enough to make you wonder who will be the first Master of the Universe to go for the big bill. 'Traditional oceanfront cottage, gunite pool, lovely grounds, needs a little TLC. A deal at $1,000,000,000.' It may happen sooner than we think, especially if the markets recover.

Back to reality. New parents Richard Gere and Carey Lowell found the perfect, although modest by Hampty standards, south O' the highway cottage in Water Mill after putting their Sagaponack house on the market last year. They needed more room after the birth of Homer, who will be spending his second summer here.

Also joining the Water Mill club is Mel Brooks who purchased a house a stone's throw from the ocean and Mecox Bay. That's a long way from the Wild West. But that's another story.

Water Mill continues to be hot but East Hampton remains the hottest one of all. Although Calvin has found a rental in Water Mill for the season while Kelly still occupies their East Hampton house, he is rumored to have turned down $50 million for the oceanfront property last year. That's big potatoes compared with Chevy Chase's estate section home, still on the market for a mere $15 million.

America's sweetheart and Today's brightest star, Katie Couric has found a swell rental in Sagaponack for August. And speaking of NBC, Executive Producer Jeff Zucker has sold his Bridgehampton house and is renting for July and August before heading back to the West Coast for the start of the new fall season. Zucker joined NBC in 1986 as a researcher for the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul. Originally from Miami, he graduated from Harvard where he served as President of The Harvard Crimson.

Diva Aretha Franklin has secured a rental again for the season as she has for the last five years. Jerry Wexler, long-time East Hampton resident, along with luminary Ahmet Ertegun of Southampton, co-founders of Atlantic Records, signed Aretha in 1966. In February of 1967, Jerry would record Aretha's first session, which produced the classic, "I Never Loved a Man the Way I Love You." The rest is history. Notoriously private, the Chanteuse has reportedly rented in a location so obscure that she may have to call the renting agency if she cannot find it.

Back to Sagaponack. NBA star Chris Mullin and Mark Gabelli (son of fund manager extraordinaire Mario Gabelli) are new neighbors in downtown Sagg. Chris, a former St. John's University forward, has found his way back to his native Long Island after years of playing for the Golden State Warriors and Indiana Pacers. Mark manages several funds for his father, a tough job during this roller coaster of a Dow.

After being headline news for most of the winter and beating a gun rap, Sean Combs, a.k.a. P. Diddy (the artist formerly known as Puff Daddy) has been surprisingly quiet. Maybe it has to do with having to pay a $300 fine for playing loud music at one of his summer parties last year. Or maybe he's working on a new song.

Contrary to his announcement, 'actorvist' Alec Balwin, has not sold his house and left the country since George W. Bush became president. In fact, he's moving into his Amagansett farmhouse and will continue to fight for cause, after cause, after cause.

All of the above just proves one thing. The Hamptons are still hot, despite the market downturn, the threat of West Nile Virus and forecasts of doom and gloom. There are many resort communities in the world, but none quite like ours. Where else could a farmer, driving his tractor through Sagaponack, wave to a recent Academy Award winner and get a wave back because he was recognized? The farmer, I mean. ●

Veterans On A Mission

Vietnam War Era Helicopter To Be Restored For Posterity Here

By Ben Amato

"Over 12,000 helicopters were used during the Vietnam War," said Al Weiss, President of the Marine Helicopter Squadron 361 Veterans Association. "Half of them were shot down."

As a memorial to those who died while serving aboard these copters, Al and his fellow ex-marines are restoring a Sikorsky helicopter. UH-34D flew many heroic missions to and from the DMZ, the Demilitarized Zone which separated North and South Vietnam.

The Vietnam War touched and shaped the lives of many who were stationed in and around Da Nang as part of the Marine Helicopter Squadron 361, known as the Flying Tigers. "We supplied the Marines in the north and the Army copters flew south. We would go up with gunships, Dewey and Cobra copters, two, three or four of us at a time.

"The HRS-B copters were in our squadron from 1963 until 1968. They were used to re-supply the troops, or for troop transport but mostly were the medivac helicopters. These were big transports, pretty sophisticated for their time, with auto pilot.

"I flew with the Korean Marines. We could fit two jeeps in there or up to eight-five Rock Marines. That's what we called them. They were little guys. Only 38 U.S. Marines could fit because we were twice their size. The copters cost a couple of million a piece and went into some pretty bad areas. I remember losing two of them in one day.

> "We need a garage that is at least thirty by fifty, with a thirteen foot door."

"I was over there for six months and flew one hundred and eighty combat missions. Ten people in my squadron were killed during my stay there, five slept in the same hooch (tent) that I did. Everyone who was there has their own stories about Vietnam. I did not like it.

"The helicopter we found to restore is UH-34D. It is down in Cochise, Arizona, around the Tucson area. There are military surplus and salvage yards down there. When the copters were retired from the military they were sold and worked in forestry, local sheriff departments and with highway patrol units. After that, they are sold by the pound, stripped, with usable parts sent all over. Some made their way into New York City commercial airports. The one we want is in a stripped state.

"At the end of June a bunch of us are going down there to pick it up. We have to transport it by truck, using a low boy type of trailer, like they do with bulldozers. It should cost about $5,000 to bring it up here."

UH-34D was part of the 361 Squadron, and set many combat records during its tour of duty. During one six month tour it flew 31,959 combat sorties, carried 37,209 personnel and made 2312 medivac. The men who served aboard this five person helicopter during it's years of service received eleven Silver Stars, twenty-eight Distinguished Flying Crosses, seven Bronze Stars and over 1644 other medals and decorations. Now it sits in the desert, a decaying relic of heroic times gone by.

Veterans

The total cost for the full restoration of this huge helicopter is between $300,000 and $350,000, with the labor being done by veterans and volunteers. "Any type of work you can do is fine. We have to take it all apart, strip down all the pieces, paint them and catalogue each one. You donít have to be a mechanic.

"People are coming forward to help. Since articles first started to appear in the local newspapers weíve gotten over fifty volunteers, from ex-Grumman employees to ex-marines involved in local community groups. The money is the thing now. We don't need a lot to get started. A few people have called up and every little bit helps. We're trying to raise $15,000 right now, to buy the helicopter and some parts while we are down there. So far Suffolk County is set to give us $9,700 and the Marine Corps League has donated $5,000.

"Another problem is looking for a facility. It's hard getting a building large enough to do the restoration. We need a garage that's at least thirty by fifty, with a thirteen foot door."

The Vietnam War forged special bonds among all who served there. Every two years over 5,000 members of the Flying Tigers meet to remember, memorialize and renew the special relationships war brings.

"In 1998, down in Pensacola, Florida, we took over the whole resort town. For four days tents were set up on the beach and we would have dinner and stage our own mini-reunions. Everyone was laughing. I saw my old C.O. down there. I had not seen him since 1969. After dinner, groups of ten or fifteen of us would sit at the tables, and talk about the crazy things we did back then, the war stories and the things we did not get caught doing. We stayed up so late that guys from the resorts had to come out and break us up at four in the morning.

"We were based in Da Nang and when we flew in we would go over Marble Mountain. It had this big Buddhist Monastery that we had to go over to get to the base. It turns out that late in the war that there was a major Vietcong base right under that mountain. It had hospitals and everything."

Those reunions and the amazing history of the Flying Tigers prompted Al to coordinate and push for the Sikorsky restoration project. "We want to build a viable memorial that could go to all parts of the county. We talked to school superintendents and they were very interested. We would set up a static display and carry the helicopter there on a special trailer. We also talked to the county about a permanent display. We want to educate everyone about the role these helicopters played in saving many lives during the Vietnam war. We understand this is a big undertaking but we want to fly this helicopter. The costs are large, $450 to $500 per hour of flight and the insurance will be over $14,000."

After serving six month in Vietnam, Al was part of the first of Nixon's withdrawals. "Fifteen of us were picked to go back. I was very lucky to come home." As a memorial to those who were not so lucky, Al and the other members of the Marine Helicopter Squadron 361 Veterans Association see their new mission as one of education, remembrance and honor. ●

Judge In Tortola Frees Three Of Four Murder Defendants, Continues Trial For Southampton Man

By Jerry Cimisi

"Michael Spicer, Alexander Benedetto and Evan George. You are discharged. You are free to go."

After sixteen months in prison, held without bail on the charge of murder, three of four American defendants were freed by High Court Justice Kenneth Benjamin. The prosecution had been able to present no evidence linking the three men to the January, 2000 murder of Connecticut artist Lois McMcMillen. The judge ruled that the remaining defendant, William Labrador of Southampton, will have to face the jury, to see it accepts or denies the one piece of evidence the prosecution possesses, the testimony of Jeffrey Plante, a man who shared a cell with Labrador and who says Labrador confessed the murder to him. But Plante, in violation of his Texas parole, and who has already been jailed twice in Tortola, may have trouble convincing the jury as the defense presents his longtime history as a conman.

Even as Michael Spicer and Evan George, two of the three freed defendants were departing from Tortola, the prosecution sought to put Spicer and Alexander right back in prison on the charge not of murder but a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

In a further twist to the case...the former wife of informant Jeffrey Plante was taken into custody for passing a bad check to the phone company.

The prosecution wanted the men back in jail so they could present a new case on this lesser charge.

Needless to say counsel for Benedetto and Spicer protested a move attorney Paul Dennis (Benedetto's lawyer) characterized as "unjust" and simply another move to "restrict my client's liberty."

Justice Benjamin would not keep Benedetto and Spicer in jail, but had them post $10,000 bonds should they have to appear in court again. The prosecution will apparently not pursue the fourth defendant, Evan George any further.

Spicer and George left Tortola midafternoon Friday. They had come for a vacation the winter before this one past, and now, finally, after a year and a quarter in prison, they were free. They ferried to St. Thomas, which is a U.S. Virgin Island. Tortola is a British protectorate.

As Spicer and George were tasting their first hours of freedom, William Labrador was on the witness stand, responding to cross examination by Senior Counsel Theodore Guerra of the prosecution.

Labrador admitted that following his being informed by the police that they had discovered McMillen's dead body, he had told Spicer not to call McMillen's parents. The four defendants had all known McMillen in varying degrees. Benedetto had dated her for several months in 1997. Labrador said he had cautioned Spicer not to call the police because it might be judged as interfering with a "criminal investigation."

Guerrra pressed the point that at that time the police had not told Labrador the manner in which McMillen had met her death and the only reason he had related to Benedetto the matter was a criminal one because he, Labrador, had killed McMillen. Labrador continued to deny this, as he denied he made an Eastertime confession to his cellmate at the time, Jeffrey Plante.

"I had nothing to confess, sir," said Labrador.

Free

"I had nothing to be absolved of, sir."

Guerra also queried Labrador about his work with a number of modelling agencies in New York City. He would not answer questions about why he had left one of the companies as he had to abide by a confidentiality agreement.

Labrador said he had never been intimate with McMillen, as had been rumored. He also said he had been totally surprised to learn in July, 2000 that Plante had claimed to have heard his, Labrador's "confession" two month earlier that May.

By the British rules of law under which the trial is conducted, jurors are allowed to question the witness. The jury asked Labrador if he was trying to present the government of Tortola in an unfavorable light due to his incarceration. Labrador responded that he had indeed spoken to the media about being imprisoned without evidence, but he had not badmouthed the British Virgin Islands.

On Monday, May 6, the defense called Jeffrey Plante's last parole officer, Tisha Neville from Texas. Barbara Labrador, the defendant's mother, has related that the parole has told the defense that Planter is a "sociopath" who will do whatever he needs to get by. If the charge against Labrador is not proven, Plante stands to not only finish a sentence in Tortola, but will most likely to be extradited to Texas, where he violated parole.

Neville was Plante's parole officer from August, 1998, into 1999. In that year Plante married, left Texas, and while honeymooning on Tortola, was eventually jailed when his wife – Plante's tenth – told police that Plante was using her credit cards without her permission.

In a phone interview the evening following Neville's testimony, Ms. Labrador related the former parole officer had said Plante had told her he was going to Austin when he was in fact leaving Texas. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

When Neville was on the stand, William Labrador's attorney Richard Hector asked her if she herself would believe anything Plante would say under oath. Neville replied she would not believe Plante whether under oath or not.

Ms. Labrador said Neville had added that Plante would say anything to help himself no matter what.

On the stand Neville also said that Plante had lied to her about employment and business dealings he said he was involved in.

Prosecutor Terrence Williams tried to make the point that Neville was not an unbiased agent for the defense. Her trip to Tortola was paid by the defense, and she had, on her own efforts obtained a transcript of a 1995 murder trial in Hawaii, when Plante had also testified that a cellmate had confessed a murder to him.

Neville said that Plante's testimony in that case followed a very similar pattern to what he had done in Tortola, and thus it was pertinent to the present trial. In Hawaii, Plante had said that the defendant in question had asked to borrow $10,000, and then, when queried by Plante, confessed to murder. Last year, Plante told police

Who's Here:

Traffic Man

By Roy Bradbrook

Maybe, as you have waited, patiently or impatiently at an airport for a plane held up by 'Air traffic control problems' or sat in blocked traffic on the LIE or Route 27 on a Friday evening, you have wondered why it is that so much time and skill has gone into the production of larger, faster, better aircraft and cars, while the problem of what to do with them once they are here has largely been ignored. Meet Dr. Cliff Bragdon, for he is one of the people in this world who has the burning ambition to free us from our traffic problems and who believes that, with the correct approach, this can be achieved without uprooting towns and villages, imposing doctrinaire restrictions on peoples' movements and generally creating conflict in the community.

Cliff Bragdon is a resident of Remsenburg and until this January he was the Director of The National Aviation and Transportation Center of Dowling College, located at Brookhaven Airport. Prior to this he had been Professor of City Planning at Georgia Institute of Technology and has been actively involved in global related transportation, planning and management projects in five continents and ten foreign countries. Based on this wide experience, it was not surprising that he has recently been hired by the Town of Southampton to find ways and means of expeditiously coping with the ever increasing traffic problems facing the whole of the East End of Long Island. Vince Cannuscio, the Southampton Town Supervisor said, when announcing the appointment, "I believe that seasonal peak traffic is so problematic, that transportation management is likely to be the most critical issue facing this community and the health of the regional economy."

Cliff Bragdon commented, "When you consider that 25% of the U.S. economy is based on the production of vehicles of all types and that one out of every six persons is employed in transportation while less that 1% of public sector spending is devoted to helping people, products and utilities to move around the country, it is easy to appreciate how the whole infrastructure has become crippled by age, lack of preventive maintenance and failure to invest in new technologies."

From his previous experiences, Cliff Bragdon is only too aware of the emotions that can be stirred up by plans to make changes in a village, town or city. "One of our successes was a major expansion project at the Palm Beach airport in Florida. When I was asked to take over the planning of the project we faced 10,000 people who were actively opposed to the plan and already there were lawsuits filed against the project totaling some $5 million! It took nine months of working with everyone involved, but at the end we had consensus and the project was completed and is now regarded as one of the most satisfactory ones that have been accomplished. Similarly, when I was asked to design a roadway system at Hilton Head to solve a major gridlock problem, there was an overriding need to ensure that the project should be engineered with great sensitivity to preclude environmental, light and visual pollution. This was the first project of its kind in South Carolina and again the final result has met with general acclaim."

> "...less than 1% of public sector spending is devoted to helping people, products and utilities move around the country..."

A current, closer to home project that Cliff Bragdon is also associated with is the ongoing study of Route 110 in Huntington and Babylon. "This is a road which is the home to over 100,000 jobs and really should be renamed 110 Techway to reflect the true nature of what the road actually does. One of our key objectives here is to make 110 a 'smart' road. Smart, in this sense, means being similar to a living organism, having the ability to interface and learn from what is currently happening."

The use of new technology is an inherent part of holistic transportation planning and even if some of the proposals may seem futuristic, you only have to remember how, just a few years ago cell phones or built in navigational systems such as 'Onstar' in cars, were equally considered futuristic but now are more and more part of everyday living.

"Today, in Europe some major roads have inbuilt technology which enables them to predict the traffic movement with such accuracy that a build up or a blockage can be predicted with a five minute lead time compared to something like the 45 minutes to an hour that is the traditional response time. These new systems can then also advise motorists of problems and select and advise alternatives. In Germany, Audi and BMW have this system up and running in their new cars and it seems likely that cars here will have this available in the next couple of years," Cliff Bragdon explained.

Looking at the task ahead of him, Cliff Bragdon sees this as an extremely challenging project and a test case of national proportions which could well serve as a future model for areas such as the Florida Keys and the Carolina Outerbanks among others. "This is not a simple case of whether or not to widen a road. It is far more complicated, not least because of the very variable nature of the volumes of traffic of all types. We have at least five different categories of users. There are the full time residents, the builders and contractors and other workers who come out and back each day, the delivery people, those who live out here on weekends and then there are the casual day visitors. We also have a number of modes of transport, land based, rail, waterborne, aviation and also the electronic movement of information. The latter is very important today because the effective use of electronic communication can have a major impact on the physical movement of people."

The one year study aims to come up with hard core recommendations which can be implemented by Southampton without recourse to other townships or the state government but as Cliff Bragdon went on, "Southampton has been very forward looking in sponsoring this project but it is also very relevant to towns such as East Hampton, especially when you consider that, for example, Sag Harbor is partially in both townships. It would be very helpful if East Hampton does decide to join in with us on this work. We will also be liaising very closely with all of the other bodies such as the East End Transportation Council on this work. Really, the eastern end of Long Island has been left out in the cold up till now on all transportation planning work. None of the major Tri-State studies have focused in any degree of depth on this area and our problems."

When I asked Cliff Bragdon how the project will be worked through he replied, 'My guiding principle is that a project such as this has no chance of success without consensus. Everyone must have an involvement which leads to eventual consensus. We will have traffic studies prepared by other companies and these will form a major input. The roles that companies such as the LIRR, Keyspan, Verizon and Cablevision can play are important factors. We must keep a balance between use and access and the environment. The solutions will address Southampton from the perspectives of air, land and sea and our proposed solutions will be presented using state of the art three dimensional simulation to facilitate understanding and bring about consensus."

Finally, in response to a question about the likely outcome of the project, he summed up in this way, "I am very confident that the work we are just starting on will result in a significant improvement to the transportation problems, such as the grid lock situations, which are starting to make some people query whether they truly want to continue to live in the area. I am a committed player because I live here and I see and experience the problems and opportunities every day. It is a very exciting and challenging project and this is a real chance to get people away from the mistaken concept that the only solution to transportation problems is to widen roads or ban cars! Modern technology enables us to plan to use total space and if we come to the table with open minds, willing to make full use of all the marvelous technology we have at our disposal, we will succeed in making Eastern Long Island an even better place in which to live."

Cliff Bragdon is not just an expert in his field but also an enthusiast dedicated to holistic transportation planning. Everyone of us who has suffered from the bottlenecks on our roads and all of the other hindrances to moving around freely, must surely wish him and the Town of Southampton every success and look forward to the conclusions of the study and then their implementation. •

Judi Arnold-Shesh, In Memoriam

By Jerry Cimisi

It was with as much disbelief as shock that the staff here at Dan's Papers learned in February that our co-worker, Judi Arnold-Shesh, was once again ill with the cancer that had been so long in remission. Judi passed away on April 20. Although we were by then perhaps accepting the inevitable in our minds, our hearts could still not accept that she had left not merely us, but the family she had been so determined to guide and support.

It is a cliché to say of a woman that she was a devoted mother. But Judi's devotion to her three daughters was deep and constant. It was in fact due to how much she was willing to go out of the way for her youngest daughter, Hope, that Judi came to work at this publication in the first place.

Judi and her family have been longtime residents of Bay Shore. (Judi was born in Brooklyn.) But when the school district there was unable, as Judi saw it, to provide an adequate education for her daughter who had been diagnosed with dyslexia, five days a week Judi drove Hope from Bay Shore to Bridgehampton so she might attend a small private school structured to confront this specific problem. It was a long drive, and it would not make sense to go back to Bay Shore and then come back out to Bridgehampton, so Judi thought it would be logical if she got a job for the six hours Hope was in school here. She came into our offices and that was that.

Last spring we published an article about Judi's struggle with the local educational system over Hope. Soon after, Judi was elated when she won a court battle with the Bay Shore school district over meeting the expenses of her daughter's special education, though the school board immediately appealed the decision. (The appeal is still pending.)

"Judi was a warrior," said Linda Bausch, a relation by marriage and a friend of Judi's since they were both 13 in Massapequa. She related that Judi had always determined "she would not be leaving the girls. That was not an option."

The daughters of Judi and Greg are Katie, 16; Emily, 13; Hope, 11.

"When Judi was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1997, she underwent chemo, radiation and stem cell replacement. It was thought then she would not survive. But she educated herself in the disease. She went into remission.

"Also, from when she was first diagnosed, she was an unbelievable supporter of others with cancer. She gave them information and referrals at all hours of the day and night."

Linda Bausch added, "In February, she and her husband Greg and the girls went on a cruise to New Orleans and Mexico. She wasn't feeling that well – this was just before she knew – but she enjoyed herself a great deal. It was good that she got to do this before the cancer came back strong. She said after that she was glad she did not know on the cruise.

"Judi was always there for her girls. Most of the time she was at home for them. She had worked at the YMCA as a preschool teacher in Bay Shore while her girls were in school. She was always ready to help not just her children but any child who came her way.

"Judi was thinking of her children right to the end. Judi died on April 20, a Friday night. The next day – Saturday morning – Emily was due to be confirmed. The Church would not be able to confirm her for another year if she did not have it done that day. So she had her confirmation. Up until the last minute Judi was figuring out what her family needed to do. One of the last things Judi asked me was if Emily had the flowers she wanted, for her wrist corsage."

On Saturday, May 5, a number of people ran as "Judi's Team" in the Revlon Run For Women, from Times Square to Central Park. Linda Bausch took part in the run, along with Judi's mother-in-law, Pauline Shesh, her sister-in-law Lydia Shesh and her brother-in-law Kevin Shesh and his wife Katie. "We raised over $7,000 for breast cancer research in Judi's name," said Ms. Bausch.

She went on, "We still feel like we're walking away from a train wreck. We don't realize yet she's not coming back."

But with the memory Judi left with those who knew her she will be here, in some way. • that Labrador had asked him for a $25,000 loan, and then, after Plante asked, admitted he had murdered McMillen.

After Nevile left the stand, the defense rested. the only other witness it had called was Labrador. Southampton attorney Michael Griffith, who had put together the defense team, with a separate lawyer for each of the defendants, had said previously that the government's witness had consistently presented a lack of evidence to such a degree that they might as well have been witnesses for the defense.

On Tuesday morning, attorney Richard Hector gave his summation to the jury. It it is expected that by late Tuesday or by some time Wednesday, the fate of William Labrador will go to the jury.

In a further twist to the case, which began April 2, Court TV has reported that the former wife of informant Jeffrey Plante was taken into custody for passing a bad check to the phone company. Channon Lytton had arrived on Tortola from Alabama on Thursday, May 3, to testify for the defense, but soon learned her testimony was no longer needed. She had been about to leave the island Sunday, May 6, when she was stopped by police. Court TV reporter John Springer interviewed a witness to this, Honey Labrador, sister to the remaining defendant, said that Lytton was checking out of the Prospect Reef Resort when she was approached by police officers asking to speak to her briefly.

William Labrador's lawyer, Richard Hector, was also a witness to this, said Court TV, and related an officer told him Lytton was under arrest on the charge of fraud.

Lytton was Plante's tenth wife. He says he is still married to her and continues to wear a wedding ring.

Court TV added that on Friday Lytton had said she was getting unnerving calls at the hotel. The unknown person on the other end of the line asked who she was, but then hung up when she answered. She had the hotel change her room and had her calls screened.

Labrador's attorney mused that Lytton's arrested was "very strange." And speculated it might have something to do with her relation to the case. Plante has said that Lytton did indeed sign a $300 check to the phone company.

In a touch of irony, Channon Lytton, Plante's ex- or present wife, is now in Her Majesty's Prison, along with Plante. ●

Obituary: John Scanlon

By Dan Rattiner

John Scanlon, the high profile public relations consultant, died at his apartment in Manhattan last Friday at the age of 66. He had had several heart attacks in recent years and apparently died from one.

Scanlon was born in the Bronx, the son of a man who worked for the Transit Authority. He went to Catholic University and after briefly considering becoming a monk, became a school teacher on Long Island. In the late 1960s he worked in Euguene McCarthy's presidential campaign.

By the mid 1970s, after working as a spokesperson in both the public and private sector, he decided to open his public relations firm. He worked hard and effectively for his clients, many of whom were accused of having done dastardly things. "Sometimes you sup with long spoons," he said about some of his clients.

He represented Brown & Williamson, the maker of Viceroy cigarettes when the government was looking into a charge that the executives there were deliberately making their cigarettes more addictive. He represented the Rev. Bruce Ritter of Covenant House, who was accused of illicit sexual activities. He represented Credit Suisse, a Swiss bank that was among many Swiss banks accused of not returning hundreds of millions of dollars held by Jews. He also represented management during a battle against the employees of the New York Daily News. These were not assignments that might have endeared him to the public at large. And, some say, he created a new form of public relations representation that consisted largely of hardball tactics and "spin."

Nevertheless, Scanlon was a wonderful and uproariously witty friend to those who knew him. He was an excellent cook, an extraordinary reconteur and a loyal comrade. He recited Irish poetry, drank, entertained and lavished kindness and good deeds on his friends and family. He also worked tirelessly to support numerous charities, and for many years was the unofficial official announcer of the Artist-Writers Softball Game in East Hampton.

Scanlon had an apartment in Manhattan, a house in Sag Harbor and a country house in County Westmeath, Ireland. He is survived by his wife Julienne, three daughters, a brother, a sister and one granddaughter. •

The Sheltered Islander

By Sally Flynn

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER # 154
OFF ROAD CLAMMING

The first preview of summer hit last week. On the first hot and beautiful day we had I decided to treat myself to some quality time on the beach. I jammed over to the delightful new take-out place, The Virtual Cook (where the Reporter used to be), grabbed some tasty vittles and a few essential beach items, like a new bright red rose sarong (only $12!!!) and cutsie bright plastic beach tote for carrying everything I bought there and headed out for Ram Island Drive.

Ram Island Drive is a thin stretch of land that joins Ram Island to Shelter Island. It's dotted with mini-beaches. Since there's water on both sides of the road, the cross breeze is tremendous so you're always nice and cool. I found a nice little spot and set up my beach camp. Blanket, book, water, eats. I got all comfy, ready to read a nice murder mystery, but first, a little lunch. I was munching on the scrumptious spare ribs I got when I heard a loud pop sound. Turning towards the road, I saw a smashed clam and a few seconds later, a big graceful seagull landed and ate it.

The tide was out and the gulls found a clam bed somewhere. They were flying high and dropping the clams on the road like they always do to crack them open and eat them. How nice to see nature in harmony like that. The clever gulls using man's road as an opening device and lofting down to eat their tiny, hard earned treat. It was really beautiful, a genuine Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom moment. I was touched, very touched, I'm always touched by sealife, I thought to myself.

On the other hand, they were eating clams on the half shell for lunch, and I, a more worthy being, was not. I watched with envy as those juicy clams splatted down on the road like rain. I used my best top-of-the-food-chain observation skills to determine that there was about 2.5 seconds. between the time the clam hit and the gull landed. Hmmm, two point five big seconds... a window of opportunity opening right before my eyes. I could cross at least fifteen feet I figured, in two point five seconds.

I walked slowly and casually to the edge of the road. I looked down and pretended like I was collecting shells so the gulls wouldn't notice me. POP! A clam hit and I made it there in 1.5 seconds! The road wasn't really that dirty, and that fat fresh clam was delicious! POP! Wiping the juice from my chin I ran to the next one. The gulls landed, but not close enough to challenge me. Heh, heh, heh.... how nice to be the most intelligent species on the planet. Around the sixth clam, the birds started to catch on and were moving the drop zone a little further down the road. These foolish birds

The successful adaptation of the film The Producers into a Broadway play was the brilliant idea of Mel Brooks and ticket sales are booming. A trip of local Hamptonites on the Jitney got a chance to see the play in its opening week. After the play they stopped to eat at B. Smith's restaurant and Barbara stopped at each table to welcome everyone. We look forward to her opening too. That is her great restaurant out here on the Long Wharf in Sag Harbor. Mel Brooks also has another opening of sorts...his new front door. He has recently purchased a house in Water Mill. Now that's someone we would love to run into at the bagel store on Sunday mornings.

thought they could outsmart me...HAH!

I guess I was about a quarter mile from my base camp when the first car came by and I had to factor that into my lunch. Dodging vehicles and diving for clams was exhausting! One vehicle with an out of state plate stopped. The driver called to me, "Are you eating the seagull's clams?"

"Yeah! What's it to ya?"

"Well don't you think that's a little disgusting? You look pathetic eating clams off the road like that! I'm driving down here for a nice vacation and I gotta look at your big ass in the air as part of the Island scenery I paid for? You're a sick woman."

"Oh yeah! You think this is easy?" I shouted as he sped off. I dunno, maybe he had a point. Or maybe I was getting full. I stood in the road to think a minute.

I looked up to see another vehicle stopping, a local worker who used to be a clammer. I bowed my head and prepared myself for an even worse tongue lashing from a lifetime local.

I saw a well tanned arm draped over the truck's door and a voice said, "Hey, how many did ya get so far?"

"I ate about twenty so far I think."

"Twenty? That's a good run. Beatin' gulls to their own clams, that's an old time Shelter Islander aerobic."

"It is?"

"Hell yes. I used to clam full time for a living. Ate road clams all the time. Keeps you in shape. You really have to run when they drop crabs 'cause lotsa them make it and try to head back to the water."

"How come you switched from clamming to painting?" I asked.

"Well, Mrs. Clam and I had some little clams and she told me it was time to quit bringing home clams and start bringing home some bacon."

"I see..."

"You probably forgot this," he called as he drove away and tossed something at me. It was a little bottle of tobasco.... there is a God....

I finished my off road lunch with a dash of tobasco on each clam...aaahhhh...to be full of clams. I ambulated slowly back to my base camp. I laid down on the soft sand feeling the warm sun on my skin and then a ga-lumpf feeling in my stomach. Damn... just what I was afraid of, I'd eaten so many clams, my stomach was going to rise and fall with the tide...don't ya just hate it when that happens? ●

Billy Joel has let it be known has the Hamptons can be a bit too much for him. He still feels connected to our beautiful area, so after he sold his home to Jerry Seinfeld, he found a quiet spot to build another home for himself. Billy has made commitments to help with his favorite charities. Welcome back, you were truly missed.

Monkey business out at the Deep Hollow Ranch? Well according to Rusty and Diane Leaver, their beautiful ranch (did you know it happens to be the oldest cattle ranch in the United States?) was the location for a fashion shoot for Playboy magazine. It seems that the new movie Planet of the Apes is the new rage and the make-up crew showed up to dress-up and make-up some actors and ranch hands to be the apes. Rusty reported he was so touched that the town showed up to volunteer help or assistance to the playboy model. We think that was a wonderful sign of public support...but we don't know why so many had binoculars.

Christie Brinkley and Peter Cook are this year's Honorary Chairs and Hosts of the 2nd Hamptons Concours d'Elegance Luncheon and Fashion show on Sunday May 27, 12 noon-2:30 p.m. at Sayre Park in Bridgehampton. Jimmy's and London Jewelers will be presenting the fashion show with commentary by Judy Licht and Robert Verdi of the Metro Channel's Full Frontal Fashion. The Concours hours are from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. with Awards Presentation at 12:30 p.m. Dan Rattiner, publisher and editor of Dan's Papers will be presenting one of the prestigious awards. The luncheon and fashion show is by advance ticket sale at $250 per person, general admission $20 at the door. All proceeds benefit the American

BOYS AND GIRLS HARBOR SALUTE TO ACHIEVEMENT

Each spring the Grand Ballroom at the Woldorf Astoria is packed with supoorters of the Boys and Girls Harbor. This year's luncheon was not different with Hampton's celebrities like Martha Stewart and Russell Simmons signed on to honor those who gave assistance to the Harbor. The Harbor was the vision and passion of Tony Duke and today has numerous activites assisting young financially underprivileged kids providing programs to help students prepare for college, a community based computer learing center, a literacy center, a conservancy for performing arts and a summer camp in East Hampton.

PAVILION OF WOMEN

Pearl S. Buck wrote about China, the country she knew and loved so much. This film adaptation deals with China in the late 1930's as the country and the culture was transitioning toward communism. The story was very heart warming and I admit that I have never read the book so I do not know if the film was totally true to Ms. Buck's vision of China. Today's Chinese government would be happy either way because the Chinese land barons were cruel to their wives, the Japanese were the bad guys, the Americans were the sinners and the communists were the saviors. The film was a World Benefit Premiere for the Pearl S. Buck International, a very worthy cause that helps children with challenges throughout the world. The agency helps over 100,000 children a year. An after-screening reception was held at the Harold Pratt House. A very gracious Luo Yan completed a mission of great passion as producer, co-writer and co-star of Pavilion of Women.

42ND STREET

The real 42nd Street has undergone a renaissance and facelift but the musical about those dancing feet is perfect just like it is. Like Peggy Sawyer the main character and aspiring hoofer who had never seen Broadway glitter, I did not grow up here and so I only knowJerry Orbach as a detective on Law and Order. I was as wide-eyed as Peggy watching the performances of this new Broadway hit. Yes, I would have loved to see singer turned actor Orbach as Mr. Marsh in the first revival, I have no alibi for saying that I am still singing the songs I heard that night

WINDOWS ON LONG ISLAND WINE

A tasting of award winning wines from 18 Long Island wineries, with cuisine from 22 top New York City and East End chefs was held at Windows on the World on the 106th floor of the World Trade Center. The VIP reception hosted by Kevin Zraly, Director of Windows of the World Wine School, benefitted Gilda's Club New York City, a place where people with cancer and their family and friends can join with others to build social, emotional and medical support. There was a silent auction this year and lucky bidders were able to acquire works of art by Long Island artists, including Ilya Kabakow of Mattituck. The evening resulted in a record turn out for the 11th annual event. See you next year.

Celebrities, fashion & art were the stars at the Madison Avenue's Business Improvement Districts 29 Block Benefit for the Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric Aids Foundation. All along Madison Avenue the Who's Who of Fashion made appearances in prestigious boutiques. The lovely and expectant Kelly Ripa was on hand showing the latest maternity fashions at the Pea in the Pod Boutique. The beautiful actress Jane Seymour attended the New York premiere exhibition of her painting and lithographs at David Yurman's. Each boutique exhibited works of art with a special connection to the designers' current collection; Warhol at Valentino, Maplethorpe at Versace, and Christopher Markos at Calvin Klein. Joan Collins, Angelica Houston & Princess Michael of Kent were some of the celebrities I spotted enjoying the festivities, and adding their own touch of Glamour to the evening.

DOGS STROLL TO THE SEA

The Animal Rescue Fund of the Hamptons held the 8th Annual Dog Walk. This year owners and their dogs met at Historic Mulford Farm in East Hampton for a Dog-Owner-Look-Alike-Contest and then strolled Ocean Avenue to Main Beach and back. There were many water bars for the dogs along the way and plenty of time for socializing. Sponsored by Iams, Dayton-Halstead, Bikehampton, and others, this year's event was a huge success. Ruff! Who's Here:

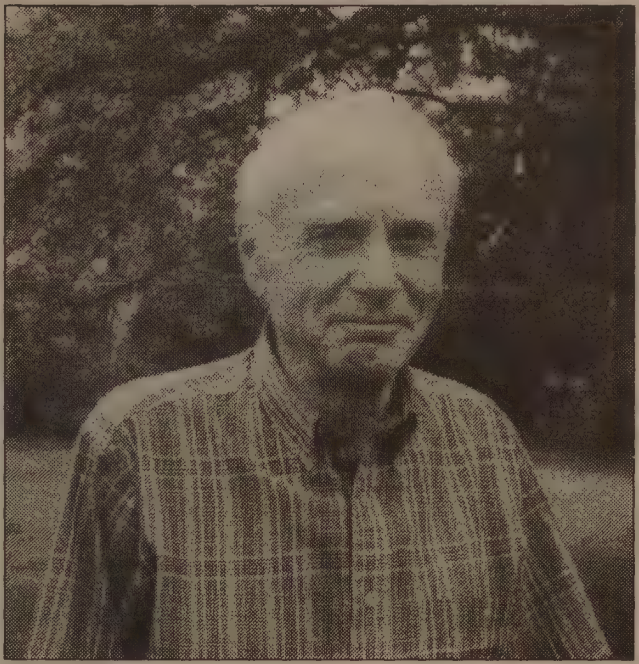
Basil Northam

Lecturer

By Susan Simm



When I first called Basil Northam to arrange an interview with him at his Southold home, his initial shy reluctance led me to expect a very reserved, staid Englishman. What I found was a dynamic and passionate individual whose warmth and enthusiasm greeted me even before I reached his door.

Formerly a special education teacher, he oversaw all the programs for the Seaford School District before moving out east with his wife Johanna in the 80s after retiring. This is the time when he truly found his life's calling. He was amazed at "how easy" it was for him to create and give slide presentations and lectures and he just brims over with charming anecdotes and humorous quips. He now lectures locally on art, history and natural history, in the Adirondacks during July and August and in Southern Florida during the winter.

Architect/artist John L. Northam, Basil's father, came to Toronto from England and ended up at New York University during the 1920s, where he created the Department of Fine Arts before moving out to Long Island. Basil's home in Southold is filled with his father's beautiful watercolors and architectural etchings.

Growing up with his parents, in Floral Park, Basil has fond memories. "When I was six years old, I remember being in the kitchen of our house. My father was an architect, and he had a roller and was doing copper prints and etchings, right in the kitchen, rolling them out right next to my mother's linen presser. And up on the ceiling was a dryer, which my father made to dry clothes in the house when they couldn't be hung outside. It didn't look much like a kitchen, but all of this was perfectly normal to me."

Although Mr. Northam's favorite artist is Winslow Homer, he says that, when lecturing about artists, "they are all perfect, in their own way, because artists have a certain way of portraying this world of ours."

"Three Visions: Thomas Cole, Albert Pinkham Ryder and Jackson Pollock," is one of Basil's lectures that combines three very different artists. "Thomas Cole is the acknowledged founder of the Hudson River School. He wanted to be out of doors and he painted America wide and bright. It was just marvelous. Albert Pinkham Ryder, on the other hand, was a loner, an eccentric with poor eyesight and he found a way to paint without using brushes. He used his palette knife instead. He was a forerunner of Modern Art and was even included in the 1913 Armory Exposition, 'Hello to Modern Art,' to announce it to America. He was such a tender-hearted, decent human being and nobody was paying attention to him until somebody said, 'hey, this is real art' and then they started beating a path to his door."

And Jackson Pollock? "Very interesting guy. Poor Lee [Krasner] found out that she had a bipolar alcoholic by the tail and he had his good moments and bad moments but I find him fascinating for his poured, drip paintings. Pollock was interested in astronomy and far-away things and astronomers themselves have said that what's out there, what they can see with the Hubbel telescope, look like Jackson Pollock works of art. Someone like Pollock is just the kind of guy that might stumble into something so magnificent."

In his lecture, 'Intriguing Artists,' Mr. Northam starts off with the wild caves of Lascaux, France. "Elaine de Kooning went there, after she left Willem, amicably, and it was the greatest thing she did. She did some of her finest work there. Some people go there and they just gasp. Before there was a France, even a Europe, these people were coming up and living in caves, 30,000 years ago, and doing art. And sometimes they even signed their work. Hey! they seem to be saying. It's me!"

Mr. Northam includes all art forms in his lectures, despite personal likes and dislikes because he feels that, if an artist is representative, his/her work should be included as a reference point. "I try not to hit people over the head. I try to discover why they did something a certain way, even if I don't personally like it. All is fair in love and art."

There is a Long Island landmark close to Basil's heart and it seems to mark certain events in his life as we mark a wall to record a child's growth. That place is Jayne's Hill in the West Hills area of Huntington, the highest point on Long Island. He remembers, "Somewhere around 1935, my father took the family on an outing to Jayne's Hill. We climbed to the summit to see the Atlantic Ocean glimmering in the distance."

Years later, Basil and Johanna would take their three sons there "to romp on the top of Long Island. I'd like to think that's why they became adventurers."

Then, when Basil heard that the war in Vietnam had ended, in 1975, he knew "immediately and instinctively

It was a record turn out at the 11th Annual Windows on Long Island Wine benefit held at Windows on the World in New York City on Tuesday, May 1. This year's event also included a silent auction, overseen by the talented Ann Marie Borghese of Castello di Borghese/ Hargrave Vineyard. The auction raised over $6,500 for Gilda's Club New York City, the brain child of our beloved late Gilda Radner. Nice work, Ann Marie!

Two Gallic grapemeisters, Bernard Cannac and Charles Emmanuel Girard, have recently joined the ranks as winemaker (Girard) and winemaker assistant (Cannac) of Gallucio Estate Vineyards. Girard has worked as a winemaker in the Loire Valley for more than ten harvests and Cannac began his career managing his family vineyard and has been a consulting winemaker since 1994. Tres bien!

Speaking of things French, Harold Watts, President of the Long Island Wine Council and owner of Ternhaven Cellars in Greenport, will be exhibiting a sculpture, on the winery's front lawn, by the artist Olinka Broadfoot during Greenport's annual outdoor show, Footfalls. The sculpture had to be stored as it was completed before the June opening and in exchange for storing it, Mr. Watts was permitted to name it as well: "Monolith du Mer avec Dionysus" will premiere next month.

Long Island wines just keep right on winning award after award. Palmer Vineyard's 1999 Gewurztraminer has won a gold medal at this year's NY Wine and Food Classic, their 1998 Reserve Chardonnay won another gold at the 2001 Pacific Rim International Wine Competition

Style and Art Combine at Southold's Newest Gallery

There is nothing like this anywhere else on the East End. Stunning, stylistic paintings adorn the walls of this long corridor of a space, artfully filled with unique, one-of-a-kind reconstructed furnishings which will "add a little bit of luxury to the home."

Proprietor Lynn Curlee, artist and author of children's books, and designer Nicholas Atkins have created a gallery so unique it defies simple definition.

"The gallery is a combined effort, a collaboration, with Lynn using the wall space and myself taking the floor space. We've done our research and have created something that we feel is truly unique here on the East End," said Nicholas recently.

Mr. Curlee, a North Fork resident since 1985, is well-known locally for both his Pindar and Duckwalk wine labels as well as for his two Hamtpon Classic posters (1991 and 1995). Currently devoting his time to writing and illustrating children's books, he has focused his attention on the creation of national monuments in his recent books. Liberty (featuring our Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor) was released in 2000, Rushmore was published in 1999 and this year, four weeks ago, Brooklyn Bridge debuted. He also has three more contracts for future books with Simon & Schuster.

Lynn Curlee's style recalls that of the great illustrator, N.C. Wyeth (Andrew's father). The vivid colors and depth of perspective achieved, especially in "Mount Rushmore" (hanging on the left wall, toward the rear of gallery) is extraordinary. The books appeal to older children and clearly, based on the fact that Liberty is about to go into its sixth printing, to adults as well.

Originally from a small town about a hundred miles north of London, Nicholas Atkins earned a degree in footwear design while still living abroad. In his current creations, he takes apart older pieces of furniture and recontrcuts them into something new, something that reflects his innate sense of style. His experinece and skills acquired while practicing in his chosen field have equipped him well to handle leathers, suedes and cowhides. Even feathers feature in some of his elegant throw pillows.

Custom throws, cushion covers and slipcovers can be ordered and Nicholas is available, time permitting, to consult on design projects. He will make something to order and will also search for a particular item for a client. Recently, he received a commercial order for faux leather-covered cubes for a new clothing store in Greenport.

Nicholas works with a local upholsterer as well as a cabinetmaker and stained glass craftswoman in Southampton. Currently hanging in the window is a superb panel in a Tiffany pattern, completely leaded, by Hallie Monroe of Southampton. Sharing the space are a pair velvet Victorian chairs flanking a coffee table upon which sits a post-war Carlton Ware coffee set with gilt edging from England. This is the Mother's Day window display.

Speaking of windows, the window displays alone are worth a visit. They will change bi-weekly (the current window display is the 5th since the gallery opened March 30!). Even more amazing and ambitious are Nicholas' plans to completely re-vamp the gallery display every two to three weeks during the summer season, beginning with Memorial Day. "Everything will literally come out of the gallery and whatever hasn't sold will go into storage. Including the paintings. A totally new look will then be created."

Currently on display are Mr. Curlee's paintings for his book, Rushmore, which had previously appeared at Gallery Henoch on 25th Street in NYC. This June 30, paintings from Brooklyn Bridge , Rushmore and Liberty will grace the front windows of Saks Fifth Avenue in NY before heading out to Southold after July 13. This show will then run for three weeks at PRIME. Over the July 4 holiday, the gallery will devote a whole show to folding screens (a unique combination of artwork, tooled leather and fabric). While most of these pieces will be a collaboration between Mr. Curlee and Mr. Atkins, look for the window display of a screen depicitng a swan against an azure sea by Mr. Curlee. It is absolutely beautiful.

People are already making PRIME a destination, simply by word of mouth. A customer from Sag Harbor recently purchased several cowhide-covered chairs and has ordered more.

"Mr. Curlee and I really wanted to put a project together that would benefit the North Fork, as we feel that it is a really up and coming place. We feel that this area warrants a gallery of this nature."

So far, the gallery has met with enthusiasm. "Nearly everyone that has come in has said, 'Wow! This is great. We love it! We love the fact that you've brought something nice to the Village of Southold. There's nothing like this.' We really hope to make PRIME a destination here on the North Fork and all of the signs, even at this early stage, are promising," said Nicholas.

Here is a gallery that exudes sophistication even before you enter the door. But don't expect the stuffiness you sometimes encounter at upscale New York spots. Nicholas will greet you warmly and welcome you into this wonderful, whimsical space.

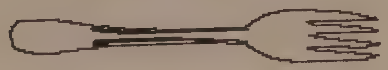
THE NORTH



One of the great pleasures of East End living is the abundance of fresh local fruits and vegetables. This column, new to the North Fork Section of Dan's Papers, will celebrate this bounty with recipes from our top restaurants as well as contributing friends.

Heralding spring, asparagus, and very soon rhubarb, is beginning to appear at our roadside stands. Both are vegetables (yes, even the rhubarb) and both are the only perennial vegetables grown here on the East End. This is one of the reasons why they are also the earliest.

Spinach is also available locally right now, and it is young and tender and great lightly sauteed or added to salads, but it is an over-wintering, cold-tolerant annual, not a perennial. It will also be around for most of the growing season, so for this column, we will focus on asparagus and rhubarb and, just around the corner, strawberries. Bon Appetit!

North Fork Asparagus Fritters and Steamed Asparagus Spears with Roasted Peppers and Lemon Vinaigrette

Serves 5-7

Compliments of Chef Jim Slattery, Seafood Barge, Southold

For the Fritters

2 lbs. steamed local, medium asparagus,cut on the bias
3/4 cup all purpose flour, plus 1/4 cup for dredging
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup Gruyere cheese, grated
3 eggs
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Toasted coriander seed, ground
Chili powder

For the Asparagus and Roasted Peppers

15-20 steamed asparagus spears
1/4 cup each roasted red and yellow peppers (fresh or jarred, drained)

For the Vinaigrette

1/2 cup lemon juice
1 1/2 cups extra virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
Salt and pepper to taste

1. Combine all ingredients for the vinaigrette, blend well and adjust seasonings.

2. Beat eggs with 3/4 cup flour, gently fold in cheeses and asparagus. Season to taste with coriander and chili powder. Form into disks and lightly coat with remaining flour. Pan-fry until golden, about 3 minutes while turning once.

3. Place three fritters on a plate with steamed asparagus spears and roasted peppers and drizzle with lemon vinaigrette.

Parmesan Crusted Asparagus and Roasted Tomatoes

Serves 4, as appetizer

Compliments of Matthew Murphy and Kim Pino of Antares Cafe, Greenport

2 bunches local, medium asparagus
6 large eggs, beaten
1 cup flour (discard leftover)
2 cups first rate quality Parmesan cheese
6 medium, ripe tomatoes, quartered

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Extra virgin olive oil
Salt

1. Lightly peel bottom third of asparagus stalks, which tend to be woody.

2. Place asparagus in boiling water, that has been salted, for one minute. Remove and immediately shock by placing in ice water. When they are completely cooled, remove and pat dry.

3. Place eggs, flour and Parmesan cheese in three separate containers. Roll asparagus first in flour, then egg and then Parmesan cheese. Continue until all are coated.

4. Bake at 350 degrees until golden brown. Serve over roasted tomatoes.

For the Tomatoes

1. Brush with olive oil, sprinkle with salt and bake until soft, about 15 minutes.

Strawberry and Rhubarb Compote

Compliments of Aristodemos Pavlou, Coeur des Vignes, Southold

1 lb. fresh local rhubarb, cleaned, peeled, deveined and cut into 1 inch lengths

1 lb. fresh local strawberries, washed, hulled and halved
1 cup granulated sugar
1 8 ounce jar red current jelly

1. In a heavy bottomed pot, place sugar and jelly and stir while bringing to a simmer.

2. Add rhubarb and sweat for 5-10 minutes.

3. Add strawberries and cook, at a low simmer, for 20-25 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Serving ideas:

Roll into freshly made crepes.
Serve warm over French vanilla ice cream.

Bon Appetit!

what I had to do. In the black of night I drove to West Hills and parked my car in the lot of a diner, so as not to draw attention. I climbed Jayne's Hill, my sleeping bag over my shoulder, and spent the night at the summit."

Later on in the 70s, Basil became a trustee of the Walt Whitman Birthplace Association. "I found a boulder sitting at the edge of the water by Caumsette Park, Huntington, and had it moved to the top of Jayne's Hill." To commemorate Walt Whitman, and Long Islanders as well, he wrote an inscription for a plaque to be placed on the boulder. The plaque is no longer there, but the boulder remains.

"You are standing on the highest point of Long Island, elevation 400.09 feet. Walt Whitman, born a mile down the road, came here to gaze "long and long" and in his day you could see the Atlantic to the south and Connecticut to the north. Some believe this hill was called Manitou, "Hill of the Great Spirit," by the Indians who lived here. Whitman called it Jayne's Hill. Places like this became part of Whitman, enabling him to start "from fish-shape Paumanok" to become the voice triumphant for Democracy, for nature, and for a world made sane by love."

Focus On New Business : Thistlebees

Charming Country Store's First Summer In Cutchogue

By Susan Simm

"I love to pick wildflowers," said Joyce Barry, proprietor of Thistlebees, "and one of my favorites is the thistle. Often, when you pick a thistle flower, you find a bee. So this was the inspiration for the name of the store. Finding the right name was one of the hardest things I've had to do so far!"

The first thing Joyce accomplished, even before the naming, was finding her present location. Active in the Cutchogue Fire Department, both Joyce and her husband learned that Andy Fohrkolb, proprietor of Kolb Mechanical and owner of the vintage building on the Main Road, was looking for a tenant who would enjoy occupying the building as it was, without altering it. Joyce's implementation of design is such a perfect fit for the site that it seems as if the building was always meant to house this charming combination of the old and new.

Joyce, whose maiden name is L'Hommedieu (North Fork wonder Russ, the multi-talented physical therapist, comedian, ice cream retailer and author of How to Know if You're a Local...North Fork Edition, is her brother, so talent clearly runs in this family), grew up surrounded by antiques.

"My mom was an antique dealer when I was a child and I just love antiques and decorating. I pride myself on being able to incorporate what people own by using creativity. There is so much out there to work with and much of it is very affordable," said Joyce, who is just beginning to branch out into consulting. Her design advice? Don't worry about following a theme. "Buy things you like and it will all fall into place."

Joyce's love for her chosen profession is evident from the moment you walk into her shop. The first thing you notice is the scent in the air: the unmistakable aroma of lavender. Joyce imports lavender from Provence every couple of months, so there is always a wonderfully fresh supply. Antique and vintage furniture shares space with April Cornell Apparel (including charming cotton nightgowns and pajamas), Burt's Bees products and antique Irish linens.

Custom bedding, by Traditions, allows customers to design their own duvet covers, dust ruffles and curtains at affordable prices. Joyce will work with you to create a custom look based on a certain color scheme or other criteria. She will go on to coordinate antique lace accessories or an antique crocheted throw, for example, but above all she stresses that combining the new and the old is a great way to achieve stunning results.

Antique lace is one of Joyce's specialties and she even custom frames lace collars as wall decorations, most from the late 1800s and early 1900s. Many of her laces are from Dublin, including wedding hankies, tablecloths, and bed linens. She is very discerning in her purchases and, I promise you will be amazed at the quality and condition of these fine items compared to those often found at vintage tabletop and antiques stores.

Another charming and hard-to-find item is the hand-made English car coat, actually signed by the seamstress! Also wonderful is the selection of small antique sterling pieces, such as tea strainers and unusual serving pieces (very well priced), old and new glassware, new Chintzware and Fioreware pottery (from Pennsylvania) made in many of the old molds, currently being featured in retro colors.

A local artist, Eileen Perany, hand-paints custom pieces for Thistlebees. She will even customize with your décor or wallpaper.

You will also find vintage watering cans and gardening tools, garden ornaments and original, hand-made bird-houses, adorned with antique artifacts such as tin roofs which are made out west. Authentic Norwegian and Irish sweaters and Vallenvort items, such as chalkware Santas, were very popular over the holidays.

Imported teas, jams and chutneys are popular in the specialty food section but perhaps the piece de resistance would have to the Devonshire Double Cream from England. This item is difficult to find on the North Fork and, if you've never tried it over strawberries, don't buy your first quart of the season without stopping by and purchasing a jar of this incredible treat first. Available in 6 oz. for $6.99 and 22 oz. for $18.99.

Surely the highlight of a visit to this charming store is exploring the Baby Room. Here you will find antique christening gowns, elaborately hand-embroidered and in mint condition (Joyce is admittedly "very picky" when shopping for these items, which she absolutely loves to do and it shows). Adorable hand-made baby sweaters, from the "Little Jumper Company," are made by Joyce's friend in England and would be absolutely perfect as a new-baby gift, priced at $40-50.

Thistlebees will also be offering bike rentals for the summer, complete with wicker baskets, maps and, if you like, a box lunch. Regular bikes as well as tandems will be available. Please reserve ahead to guarantee availability.

Classes and lectures in Victorian china painting, edible flowers and gardening will be ongoing: check our North Fork Day by Day calendar for upcoming events.

Whether you are searching for the perfect gift for a friend or a treat for yourself, stop by this charming new store and plan to spend some time here, there is just so much to see. I am certain that you will "bee" delighted.

Located on the Main Road in Cutchogue. (631) 734-5362.

Dan's North Fork

By Susan Simm

Famous among Hamptonites for years, Lobster Roll or "Lunch," as it is affectionately known in Amagansett, is a familiar landmark on the 'Nappeague Stretch' as you head out to Montauk. Owner and originator Fredrick H. Terry, after retiring from a 30-year career as a college professor, decided to open a second restaurant in his family's hometown of Baiting Hollow, a charming little hamlet at the very beginning of the North Fork. The original family farm lies just across Sound Avenue from the restaurant, and the Terry family's lineage goes straight back to the year 1640, when both Southold and Southampton were founded.

Occupying a beautifully renovated 100-year old farmhouse, this casual, airy restaurant is smoothly and professionally run by Frederick's son, Damon Terry. Open for lunch and dinner six nights a week (closed Tuesday), Lobster Roll "Northside" serves some of the freshest fish around.

To start, try a bowl of their excellent New England style clam chowder or the equally yummy Manhattan style seafood chowder. Neither is over-burdened with herbs, so the fresh seafood taste really comes through.

If your appetite is up for something hardier, several appetizers are must-tries, even if you have to share them in order not to fill up. First, the truly magnificent shrimp cocktail. Four giant Gulf shrimp perch on the edge of a tall glass and are escorted by lemon wedges and cocktail sauce. These were the best I have tasted in any restaurant since Dar Tiffany, a grand steak house, opened in Greenvale for a ten-year run in the '80s (this for any of you North Shore readers) and believe it or not, they are priced at $9.95 just as those at Dar Tiffany were 15 years ago! Over-priced then, the current price tag is well warranted, as you won't find better. (The only disappointment was the bland, kethcupy cocktail sauce, almost devoid of horseradish and lemon.) These same fabulous crustaceans show up again, this time as entrees, both scampi-style and grilled, en brochette. Both preparations are top notch.

Also recommended are the plump mussels and little neck clams, both steamed in their own mesh bags and served with herbed butter, broth and garlic sauce. Fried calamari and onion rings are also good, but somewhat more run of the mill.

Many restaurant critics focus on the breadbasket as an indicator of things to come. This one did not disappoint. In fact, the country-style rustic rolls, which make another appearance in some of the sandwich specials, were so good that they made us long for something other than the pre-packaged butter packets to spread on them.

Both restaurants' namesake, the lobster roll, is as good as any you will find, anywhere, for $10.95 including Cole slaw and potato chips The only thing close this critic has tasted was, believe it or not, McLobster sandwiches, sold by McDonalds restaurants in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. Lobster Roll's filler-free, fresh lobster salad, served in the requisite toasted hot dog bun, is a classic East End treat. Also available by the pound for $29.95, this is a salad around which to build a light summer supper for entertaining.

Lobster Roll "Northside"
Sound Ave, Baiting Hollow
631-369-3039

Lobster Roll offers many options when it comes to entree time. Grilled fish and chicken salad platters feature charbroiled tuna steaks or boneless chicken breast, both lightly marinated, atop a fresh toss of mixed greens. Choices of dressings include the usual suspects. Other platter possibilities, served with homemade Cole slaw and French fries or a small salad, include deep-fried clam strips, lightly breaded shrimp, charbroiled shrimp, deep-fried soft-shell crabs as well as fried oysters, pan-seared scallops and an open-face London broil sandwich.

The specials here are just that. Thursday nights currently feature Lobsterfest, and, as you may have guessed, lobster takes center stage. Cakes, bisque and cocktail are good but if the only thing that keeps you from ordering whole lobster is intimidation or a fear of wielding nut crackers, head straight for the Lobster Dream. This out-of-the-shell presentation is stuffed with fresh crabmeat and it is delicious.

Another unusual offering, on Friday nights, are swellbellies, otherwise known as puffers or blowfish. Lobster Roll is such a believer in this species that they own all of the trademarks and are the largest buyer on the East Coast. Served tempura style, scampi style or stuffed with crabmeat, these tasty, flaky white meat fish are truly unique. Also swell (I couldn't help it!) are the horseradish-crusted salmon filet and a marinated, grilled New York strip steak for heartier appetites. You might think that steak is an afterthought here, but the special we tried on a recent weeknight was every bit as good as those at steakhouses and cooked precisely to order.

Last but not to be forgotten, the classic fish and chips, this time dipped in tempura batter before deep frying, are light and greaseless and it is accompanied by some of the finest tartar sauce ever encountered in a restaurant. If Lobster Roll ever offers it retail, go for it.

If you have any room left after feasting, try a slice of famous Briermere Farms fruit pie or chocolate mousse cake and top it off with homemade cinnamon ice cream.

This summer, beginning Memorial Day weekend, lobster cocktails along with clams on the half shell will be served deck-side at an outdoor bar along with tropical, blender fruit drinks on weekends.

With Lobster Roll "Northside" at the gateway to the North Fork and Lobster Roll "Lunch" south side in the Hamptons, the Terry family has the East End covered. Lucky us!

GOLFING

By Bob Ballot

As you sit outdoors at HB's on the Gulf awaiting dinner in the languorous southwest Florida air, it is a touch disarming to note the tone of the conversations which surround you. Good-humored, affable, even polite. A far cry from a night on the town in the urban northeast. You might hear a fresh-scrubbed young'un ask about the pronunciation of hummus. You will not hear a pride of smart-alecky Wall Street types taking pity on some poor slob.

Welcome to the Naples Beach Hotel & Golf Club. Family-owned and charming guests since 1946, the 318-room hotel is a landmark of stability in one of Florida's fastest changing cities. For the past decade or so Naples has been under a construction boom as freshly minted millionaires erect their McMansions along the gulf coast. The Naples Beach Hotel, however, has remained blissfully out-of-sync with this breakneck pace.

According to Jim Gunderson, the resort's general manager, three generations of family ownership ensures that this symbol of the South Coast's past remains vital to its longtime guests and to those discovering it for the first time. "The Watkins family has resisted offers from major corporate hotel groups. Their family heritage is rooted in this place. So are the vacation histories of many families who come down here every year. They grow comfortable with the idea that this is their winter residence," Gunderson said.

Benign tranquility encircles the resort. After dinner at HB's, the only beachfront restaurant in Naples, a mild hop over a half-hearted seawall takes you from a sumptuous dessert to a splendidly sequestered stroll along the gulf shoreline. On a Saturday night, with the Southern Cross high above, a mile-long walk yields no passersby. The low-profile Gulf surf sizzles down the shoreline like a fast-burning fuse. Jetties jut out from the beach, producing a bit of spray as well as a test of balance for the mildly adventurous.

Then back to a room of periwinkle walls, maple-stained furniture and a blue-tiled bathroom floor. Recessed lights in silver fixtures generously suffuse the old-fashioned, yet deceptively modern room. Rising five floors above the beach, you have the sense you are sailing along in the upper cabin of a cruise ship. The balcony door even comes with a porthole, which at sunset provides a frame around the sinking red rubber ball. The Florida sun announces itself spectacularly the next morning as well. Opening the whitewashed shutters at dawn unveils the tops of towering palms glowing amber for a few fleeting moments.

It must be noted, however, that amid all this freedom from commotion, one disturbance is bound to make New Yorkers feel just like home. The grouchy elevator doors in the lobby shut as quickly and single-mindedly as those of the number 7 train at rush hour.

But the resort's relaxing pace is re-established the moment you set foot on its venerable golf course. Renovations come by every few years, the latest in 1994, but nine holes of this stately layout date to 1930. Occupying a lovely parkland setting, the course travels through a veritable botanical garden of tropical flora. Birds and turtles appear to be fat, dumb and happy here as well; the earth movers have not been invited in.

The course's character is defined by its small, but accepting greens, and tremendous par threes, which as a set will leave even scratch golfers with their hands full. Two require lengthy water carries, and a third has a flight over water as the preferred way in.

Several other holes incorporate water hazards, most often laterally. In fact, throughout the layout there is a fascinating interplay between either mounds or trees on one side of the fairway and water not too far opposite. The second hole, a 387-yard par 4, is a prime example. A tight fairway becomes suffocating if your drive plays short. Water sneaks in on the left and a mound interrupts the right side of the fairway, not far out from the green. With the fairway sloping off the mound toward the water, a straight second shot hit with modest draw can easily find a water grave.

From the back tees, the third hole presents one of the two most challenging shots of the day. At 173 yards, almost entirely over water and often into a stiff prevailing wind, all but the most crisply struck irons will belong to Neptune. Under these conditions, even a 3-wood will have to fight to gain the green. With pin placement front right, a fade over the water must also carry a large greenside bunker. A draw is a clearer way to the pin but is tricky, as the tropical foliage will ensnare the shot if it stays straight.

The 385-yard par-4 fourth plays out to the left toward a large fairway trap. But this is no ordinary collection bunker. Sprouting from the middle of the hazard is a thick-trunked ficus. To get stuck by its base or one of

The Elite 18

(Semi-Private and Public Course Golf holes)

From the wooded, pristine courses of the Pine Barrens to the magnificent links layouts of the Twin Forks, golfers on the East End are blessed with a stunning variety of courses to match wits against.

With 15 full length courses and a sprinkling of quality par three layouts, the East End has golfers saying Myrtle Who?

To celebrate the area's emergence as a golfers paradise. Dan's Papers introduces a contest to determine the elite 18 holes of the East End. Send in your choices for your favorite holes by filling in the ballot below.

(Comments explaining your choices are welcome)

The results will be published weekly, one hole at a time, beginning with our special golf issue, June 1st.

its roots can easily cost you a stroke in penalty.

The fifth hole is the first par five and also the number one handicap. A gentle dogleg bends right and leaves a comfortable driving zone. The second shot, however, is quite exacting as lateral water left and three stout leafy acacias on the right leave a semi-blind long iron to get into scoring range. The alternate route, safely around the trees, requires staying short of the lake, which approaches faster than it appears and can gobble up hot running shots.

The picturesque sixth hole is the only par 4 topping out over 400 yards. A two-tiered green is framed by a welcoming committee of youthful palms. It is lovely holes like this which remind you of how nice it is to be on the verge of the tropics.

No. 13 is a medium-length par four, which nonetheless demands good distance off the tee. A meek drive means a fairway wood will have to deal with a tiny green fronted by two pinching bunkers with a pair of lips to impress even Mick Jagger.

The day's most interesting par 5 follows at No. 14. To reach this 501-yarder in two, the drive must play long to the left side of the fairway. Water right shouldn't be a concern, but the column of tall palms guarding it are if your drive favors the right side. Only a majestic power fade will find its way to the green from this side of the fairway.

One of the well-known charms of this course is how easy it is for a single player to find a game. The cart attendants will keep a lookout for you. And should you be engaged in a close match, the course offers a couple of marvelous holes down the stretch.

The 16the hole is 199 yards from the tips, with a pond covering the left side. Both sand and water protect the left corner of the green. An imposing Java plum, poised just off the front left of the tee box gives left-to-right players something additional to think of as they plot their way to this distant and well-guarded green.

Bordering on classic, the 18the is a great finishing hole. This beautiful and glorious 398-yard par 4 mirrors the earth's composition: two-thirds water, one-third land. Lateral water hazards cling to each side of the fairway and then converge just short of the green. If your approach doesn't fly to the green it had better bounce across the stone bridge. What's more the tiny green has a narrow entrance and is steeply sloped back to front. When the pin is placed in the front, harrowing two putts will often be called upon to win matches.

Should you seek a little variety in your recreation, the resort offers six Har-Tru tennis courts and a large beachfront swimming pool. For relaxation and rejuvenation the full-service spa gets oohs and ahs, particularly from those on the massage table.

Package rates at the resort include a comprehensive buffet breakfast. You shouldn't forgive yourself if you pass up the otherworldly cheese blintzes.

Shop 'til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Getting ready for that special day in May? Mother's Day. I am ready to do some shopping, let's go...

Have you been to Lume on Main Street in Amagansett lately? Well they have been working very hard at expanding their product lines. Lume now carries "Fresh" Tipton Charles, Lot Hantique – a line of complete violet body care and jewelry. There are gifts, gifts, and more gifts. Look for an amazing assortment for Mother's Day including beautiful handmade greeting cards and photo frames. No furniture here, only gifts...Believe me, this store is worth the trip.

Eclectic Design of East Hampton at Newtown Mews on Newtown Lane is doing it again. Celebrating their third year, they are ready for the summer season filling the store with lots of new merchandise, including unique furniture (old and new), accessories, lamps and gifts. Landing at Eclectic Design from the South of France, are some of the world's most exquisite dried floral arrangements by Melonie De France. A great Mother's Day gift is Eclectic Designs' signature silk florals. Just wait until you see them! They can be reached at 329-0432.

Karen Adler of Gems of the Past on Park Place in East Hampton has beautiful Art Deco jewelry along with unique pieces of jewelry that will excite moms everywhere on Mother's Day. Stop in and enjoy the geometry and color of the Art Deco jewelry and much more.

It's barbecue time and it's Pulver Gas's annual "Big Barbecue Sale" for the month of May...This entire month, you can save on beautiful decorator grills from distinguished manufacturers, like Beef Eater, Broilmaster, Solaire and Vermont Castings. They are specially priced and all include special gift packages that include free assembly and delivery with a free tank of propane. Located on Main Street in Bridgehampton, these are not your everyday grills. Give Pulver a call at 537-0930.

My friend Blaise and I stopped off at Marders on Snake Hollow Road in Bridgehampton for a nice plant for my mom. Before we knew it, we were buying vines for arbors that both of us just had built on our decks. I found the perfect vine and I was so excited I thought I should share it with my readers...It's a new version of the old and hardy honeysuckle vine, but I re-named it the "Betsey Johnson Vine" because the flowers that bloom (from frost to frost) are the colors that remind me of the colorful Betsey. The blooms are kind of spiky and are hot pink, coral, yellow, orange, wine and white, all on one flower...what fun! Mary, the plant associate at Marders, helped us pick and choose and decide on which ones to plant. Thank you Mary... Oh and yes, I bought my mom an azalea bush, too.

Warren's Garden Center and Nursery on Montauk Highway in Water Mill is celebrating Mother's Day by discounting everything in their garden center and nursery with 10% off. There is a great selection of trees, shrubs, perennials and annuals, for that special person in your life...Mom.

At Eleni Prieston's Byzantine Gold Sag Harbor Studio you will find a colorful tapestry of stones and magnificent 22-karat gold jewelry. Mother's Day is a special day and there are very upscale, beautiful one-of-a-kind pieces that are unique and exciting. There is a rainbow of precious gems in gold and platinum wedding band selections, earrings, bracelets, necklaces and much more. Call for information at 725-3828.

Generous fashions by Headley Studio in Sag Harbor have just arrived...Steve Headley has just created four new original fabrics and twenty-five new clothing styles focusing on the petite generous woman. He has put together hand-painted dresses, sarongs, and jackets and is happy to have plus-size bathing suits with matching sarongs. Look for his Summer Preview Fashion Show and Luncheon on June 9. Check our calendar listings for the complete information.

Happy Mother's Day to all the wonderful mothers in the world and Happy Mother's Day to my very sweet and special mom...Evelyn.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Junior Checkmate

"Chess is an artistic game," said Steve Peiffer, "it's a very creative form of competition." The first Rogers Memorial Library Chess Tournament began last week in the Morris Meeting Room of the their new building, with Steve, the coach of the Southampton High School Chess Team, overseeing the action. "These players are not rated, with each getting four games. No one is knocked out by a loss but remember, you touch a piece and you have to move it."

Young teens from across the South Fork, from Westhampton to Montauk, slid up to the tables and tested each other's skills.

"I like the strategy," said eleven year old Billy Duffy.

The Morris Room was filled with young players, ranging in age from eleven to nineteen and many had their parents and siblings there to support them. The head of the Young Adults section of the library, Susie Paige, helped organize this event and has a hand in the adult chess meetings held at Rogers Memorial, every other Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. She also led spectators on tours of their new facility which opened last November but was dedicated last weekend.

To get into the Morris Meeting Room, you have to pass through the Madelle Hegela Semerjian Art Gallery, which monthly features works of different artists. Also on the ground floor is a self-contained Computer Room and a Travel Section, one of the library's most popular genres. A special room is set aside titled The Long Island Collection, "where we keep non-fiction material so anyone doing genealogical research and other historical pursuits can have a quiet place to study," said Susie.

The main floor of the building has a fireplace in its center, surrounded by living room furniture and easy chairs. A young adult section holds computers, AV equipment and sound proof glass walls. "The Family Department has its own wing," added Susie. It also holds a huge pirate ship and a pod of dolphins suspended from the ceiling, along with Children's Literature and a special bank of computers suited for smaller hands. "Our AV area is being expanded. We offer many books on tape but now are bringing in Books on CDs, suitable for the sound systems of newer cars."

The quiet action of the day centered on the chess boards and the young teens pushing their pieces. "It went well and everybody had a good time," said Steve. "Chris Adamczyk, age thirteen, from Southampton Middle School, took first place and received a forty dollar prize. David Schnabel from Westhampton Beach took second and received twenty-five dollars and nineteen year old Andrew Wetzel, from Montauk, took third and got ten dollars. He was extremely thoughtful, comfortable with the smaller kids and very pleasant.

"As the Southampton High School coach, I like to have the human aspect of the game brought out as much as possible. We de-emphasize the adversarial aspect of the competition. We set up in the front hall of the high school, so anyone can drop in. All our players are improving but we don't compare to western Suffolk and Nassau County. Those players have much more experience. I look at chess as a life-long passion. These kids will be teaching the game to their children.

"As a young fellow my father taught me the game," Coach Peiffer revealed. "He said he would take me to dinner and a movie when I beat it. I lost for a lot of years but when I finally won we went to see The Battle of the Bulge and ate at Shippy's Restaurant in Southampton.

"I like to teach, but in chess, one must realize that everyone will lose sometime. Plus I lack the ability to lose gracefully."

For more information about Adult Chess meetings and the next teen competition, call The Rogers Memorial Library at 287-1931.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

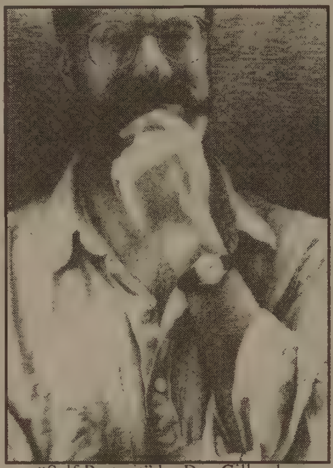
"THE GLOBAL VILLAGE" AT GUILD HALL

Like the last show at the Arlene Bujese Gallery ("Nature in Transition"), this one at Guild Hall evokes false expectations. "The Global Village" conjures up "fomats which are both globally informed and personally inspired... each artist approaches the art making process from an intellectual as well as spiritual/instinctual/emotional point of view."

As well-meaning as this exhibit's description is meant to be, it is also a daunting one, placing the artists in a context where many of them can't feel comfortable. In a nutshell, the presentation's aims contradict what this critic saw on the walls. This is not to infer that few East End artists can satisfy the high standards set by the show's selection process. Quite the contrary.

Very few works, therefore, "covered the waterfront," so to speak, by extracting every area of man's being (intellectual, spiritual, etc.). Nor did many pieces inspire an understanding of "current art world issues." Of course, that's not a sin. What we're really saying is – better to forget the hyperbole and to let the art speak for itself. Then and only then can we critics appreciate works on their own merits and not on the somewhat unrealistic standards that have been set.

With that in mind, there are some wonderful uses of texture and techniques that allow pieces to soar: Mike Solomon's "Mary, 1998" is an abstraction made with beeswax which seems both primal and personal (with his title, "Mary"); we wonder about its origin. Rima Mardoyan-Smyth's works are similarly arresting due to her special employment of encaustic on wood. (Ironically, her smaller works recently at the Nightingale Gallery seem closer to Guild Hall's aims.)



"Self Portrait" by Dan Gilhooley

A conceptual piece by Howard Clifford, "How Will I Die," also approachs these goals. The juxtaposition between his abstract painting and the number of days he has left is an ironic comment on any number of levels. Christa Maiwald's "Toy Bombs" is also ironic/contradictory (like Mr. Clifford's work) while also dealing with "global" (universal) concerns: the fragmentary connection between children and violence mirrored by her fragmentary, surreal, composite imagery. Here, form equals content.

In a series, Ms. Maiwald uses the same principle of form equals content: Her "Adolescent #5" juxtaposes images of a sexy teenage girl which is made from thread, thus connecting the idea of stability (thread/cotton) with an adult-child spinning out of control.

Consider, also, Ms. Maiwald's "All Dressed Up," which features a row of male genitalia, all of which are dressed in clothes. Talk about personification.

Drawings by Dan Gilhooley in the Spiga Gallery (he received Best in Show at last year's Members Exhibiton) are a real eye-opener and could very well be a part of "The Global Village" exhibit. While it's easy to compare Mr. Gilhooley's work with those of Chuck Close, there's an edge to the former's art which is unique. His asymmetrical composition and use of negative space appear to be the key.

The shows at Guild Hall will be on view until May 27.

Honoring The Cover Artist: Rich Fiedler

This week's cover, "Regina Maris at Bug Light," holds special meaning for its artist, North Shore resident Rich Fiedler. The turn-of-the-century lighthouse, a well-known area landmark, burned down in 1963, but all the locals (including Mr. Fiedler) helped rebuild it. With $100,000, the structure, which guards the entrance to Greenport Harbor, was transformed to its former self in one year's time.

Mr. Fiedler's attachment to the lighthouse, however, goes a bit further. The building not only helps him navigate when he's out on the bay now, but it has served as a guiding light for six generations of his family members. "I come from a family of commercial fishermen," Mr. Fiedler explains. "They came to Greenport as German immigrants; my wife's family are from Wales and started the North Fork Bank, so we both have deep-rooted connections here."

Mr. Fiedler has his own personal connections to fishing as well. "I worked my way through college catching swordfish," he notes. "We did it with harpoons but longlining (setting hooks) killed the industry. The film, The Perfect Storm, was about longlining; it was quite realistic, I thought."

While Mr. Fiedler loved fishing, even buying his own boat after college, his continued commitment to swordfishing halted when there were simply no more to be caught. Training at the New York Institute of Technology, however, enabled Mr. Fiedler to earn a living as an illustrator for the Army at Fort Bragg during the Vietnam War.

And yet, the call of the sea was still exerting a presence on Mr. Fiedler. When he finished his stint with the service, Mr. Fiedler came back home and went into lobstering, all the while painting on a part-time basis. Soon he found he was able to make a living doing his art full time.

Mr. Fiedler has been devoting himself to painting ever since, his subjects reflecting a love of the sea and its surroundings. His twenty-three limited-edition prints now available are a good example of this penchant for the water: realistic renditions of beach and boat scenes. Other works capture the charming local ambience: a pair of swans; a close-up of beach stones. There's a sense of timelessness in all of the artist's pieces.

Sometimes, Mr. Fiedler deviates from his realistic style; one particular piece, "Levitation," features a surrealistic image of boulders being suspended above the ocean.

Whatever the style, however, we can bet that Mr. Fiedler's works will never travel far from the sea.

"They Made The Movie Here" Film Festival 2001

The Woody Allen Project

WOODY ALLEN
ONE OF THIS FESTIVAL'S FAVORITES MAYBE BECAUSE HE'S MADE MORE MOVIES OUT HERE THAN ANYONE ELSE

With a compilation of film clips and documentary, The Movies Made Here Film Festival will give Woody Allen fans a look behind his funny-looking face that contains both Comedy and Tragedy. And, while we're peeking around the eyeglasses and heavy lids, perhaps we'll find out why he's such a fan of the East End as a place to film. . . in spite of his repeatedly saying that he hates to leave Manhattan. . . a weekend away? Pffuh! and the sun? ugh!

Those utterances, accompanied by the cock-eyed smile and simultaneous twist of agony, are captured in a documentary by Barbara Kopple, Wild Man Blues. In it you will meet his parents who insist he should have been a druggist and still wonder what he was doing in his room... for such a long time. His wife, Soon Yi and his sister, Letty Aronson, are there to coddle him, like the fragile, thin-shelled tough ol' yegg he is. And, too, to give him what for.

WHAT'S HE DOIN' MISERABLE IN EUROPE?

You'll tour Europe with them. You know... those other places outside Manhattan and the Hamptons... Paris, Madrid, Geneva, Venice, Milano, Rome, London. All of them, a kvetch away from home. What takes him there? Why, his love of New Orleans Style Jazz... and Europe understands its' value so, he's touring with a band doing one-night stands in the major cities. Talk about fans coming out! For Woody, it's frightening but, they want to hear him play clarinet with the group dedicated to Jazz's roots.

If you haven't been to Michael's Pub in Manhattan (where else) where Woody has appeared regularly with the Band led by Eddy Davis, you'll see and hear them, without a cover charge or minimum. The music is described by Woody and the musicians as crude (or pre-sophistication). It is a bit basic for my tastes but, it do get your toes tapping. My own palpitations go out for Woody's tastes because he talks a great deal of a Master of early Jazz, Sidney Bechet, who was my mentor and responsible for my working in Paris... way back then. Unlike Woody, I didn't play Concert Halls... only the caves... and Woody packs those big halls.

WHAT WAS HE DOING IN HELEN RATTRAY'S HOUSE?

Putting music in the background, you'll find out what he and Soon Yi have for breakfast (besides his array of pills... from a drug store! See?) You'll learn that he can't share a bathroom with anyone, not even Soon Yi. What does he think of pets? A dog licking him? He'd rather be bitten by the dog. No love lost there. And, what about his strange love affair with the Hamptons?

Yes, Woody owned a rather large house in Southampton. Is that the place talked of in his Hannah and Her Sisters? Someone in the audience will know, I'm sure. Let's talk... and revisit some of the locations with segments from his movies. Is the lobster that got away in the kitchen (padding his part in Annie Hall) still lurking somewhere, now mammoth in size? And, whose kitchen was that? Who owned that great house used in Interiors? The exterior wasn't chopped liver either. If Maryanne Caristo can take time away from Real Estate business we'll get her to reminisce about growing up there. And, what about real estate values of "movie" houses? Remember those hysterical predictions and clammy social scenes that reeked of the Hamptons in Mighty Aphrodite? Why did the young girls love coming out here in Everyone Says I Love you, Woody's musical?

What was Woody doing in Helen's house? I'll see you at the Ross School . . . first building on the right. Call 537-0500 early for reservations and a good schmooze.

Guy de Fraumeni's HOLLYWOOD in The Hamptons

Town And Country

DRIVEN

WHAT COUNTRY? DOPEY MILLIONAIRES' DUPEDOM. WHAT TOWNS? THEIR PLAYGROUNDS: EAST HAMPTON, FIFTH AVENUE AND SUN VALLEY.

Attention Connoisseurs. We're not necessarily discussing, TOWN & COUNTRY, the self-congratulatory, swell and glossy magazine for swells. We're talking about TOWN AND COUNTRY, the self-congratulatory, swollen and rather glossy, but, cheesy movie, with swells. . . for the hoi polloi. It features a millionaire cast that may have kicked-back money to help pay for the tens of millions of $ it went over budget. They may also have paid for its' release to be delayed. . . by years. Good grief! It could have been a few decades . . . the script is so old. . . and, not as good as some of those oldies that in their time had novelty going for them.

WARREN & DIANE & GOLDIE & GARRY & BED & MALICE

TOWN AND COUNTRY is a "sleep-around" movie with bedable and bankable stars like Warren Beatty, Diane Keaton, Goldie Hawn, Garry Shandling, Andie MacDowell, Nastassja Kinski, Jenna Elfman and a fine, brown cello. Unlike 1969's Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice, they aren't all in the same bed at the same time but, knowing that the two men are whacked by a midlife marital crisis, you are certain there is going to be more mounting done than by the Royal Canadian Police. You wonder about the cello? Borrowing, as it does, heavily from the past . . . the mellow-cello, wrapped so fervently between the legs of nude Natassja, was inspired by the pioneering performance artist, Charlotte Moorman. Throughout the film your mind will be battered by remembrances of things past... and a lot of blunt names for once private blunt parts.

Besides being lifted, the cello sequence was obviously moved from the body of the movie to the beginning and given a voice-over by Beatty to set the premise and give the movie a narrative thread. However, it doesn't help the movie's shabby incoherence despite its glitzy settings and locations... shabby's the word. That and desperation for laughs. To account for the classy Fifth Avenue apartment and East Hampton home, Beatty is an architect building things as great as Gehry's Guggenheim in Bilbao (tho' he never works). Keaton is a designer, as well and, like their design mock-ups, their marriage is a model one. Until... like their closest friends, Hawn and Shandling, long time Mr. and Mrs... the Mr. rushes into a bed and mortal sin with a new body, Beatty follows down the itchy path of infidelity to the lush, hi-fidelity, full-bodied, sound made in the unsound menage a trois with Natassja and her warm, vibrating cello.

LOVE & MARRIAGE & OTHER STUFF

Shandling's secret tryst had a new body alright! A man's body. So, it turns out... Garry had been a homosexual... locked in Goldie's closet and lingerie drawers and drawers, period, for over 20 years. Who knew? No one! and here's more wrong with the outdated script, that's behind the time and behind a huge, fat meatball. What should be cutting social satire, is just the big, rubbery meatball thudding of the expensively decorated walls. Then there's Beatty thudding unlikely and unlikable sex with Goldie, Andie, Jenna, et al. Poor Diane is left, righteously, up on the walls, like the other expensive antiques.

Trying hard, the movie thuds heavily, too., into slack slapstick with Andie's crazed parents. The grand woman of theatre, Marion Seldes, as her sex-starved mother, careens about in a wheel-chair crashing into everything and shouting obscenities that would have made Richard Pryor blush. Charlton Heston, as the father who adores Hemingway, guns and violence, parodies himself as a maniacal weirdo. What should have jump started a sense of outrage and socio-polictical commentary in the film merely shoves a bad taste down your throat.

It is the poor, rich souls who made this movie who should have their mouths washed out . . . or better still, one of those high-priced spa's high colonics infused with up-to-date sensibility, intelligence and wit.

Darn it, even our brilliant Hamptons seem undiscernible and really, pretty dull. And, what's the movie's preoccupation with their Hampton's house weather vane? Is Beatty straightening up the weather vane rooster a sexual pun? A symbol of a toppling society? I ask too much.

DRIVEN DRIVERS... DRIVEL

Sly Stallone, attempting to get up to speed career-wise by writing the script for DRIVEN about HI-SPEED auto racing, and, starring in it , appears to me to have collided head-on with the director Renny Harlin, who likes fast cutting of colorful, shiny race cars and helmets but, slows way down to ogle the oodles of bouncy breasts and bobbling backsides of the women who come out and, I mean, come out for racing car competitions. If those camera stares at the babes slow down the dramatic intent of the storyline, wait 'til you have to sit through Sly's not-so-peachy, speechy-preachy dialogue and, his and the other actors lugubrious performances that drag down what is notably thrilling about international, hot wheelers' championships.

There is plenty of the racing. . . heightened tremendously by computer generated effects and reconstruction of destructing auto accidents but, to hear the likes of Stallone, Burt Reynolds (borrowing Ms. Seldes' wheelchair), Kip Pardue (as a kid-Rocky racer) and others in slo-mo, with no mo to say than you've heard in all the sport movies of the past . . . fooey! If you learn one thing from Driven . . . it's that race cars run on fuel not gas. Got it? With the price of gas these days, it's no wonder.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award winning European films and Network TV. He has judged the major Film and TV award competitions. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

It's a special card, or breakfast in bed or the gorgeous floral bouquet. It's Mother's Day. And it's small payback time for all those days of "mom" food that sustained us.

While Mother's Day is probably the most popular dining out day in the year, according to statistics, there is nothing like the gathering of the clan at home. Plan an easy menu so that you can spend time together instead of at the stove. Innovative main course salads or a composed salad, a constructed arrangement of textures and flavors, can be the simple answer to Mother's Day entertaining.

Sparkling fresh sea scallops should be in your local fish markets about now. A salad composed of sautéed scallops served on a bed of radicchio, watercress and endive and drizzled with ginger balsamic vinaigrette has my taste buds watering.

Grilled marinated chicken breasts with herb salad topping makes a favorite warm weather lunch. While it may be a challenging dish to prepare much of the preparation can be done the day before. When ready to serve toss the greens in a light dressing of lemon juice and a flavorful olive oil and mound over the chicken breasts, grilled to a juicy tenderness.

Jacqueline Savino remembers how exciting Mother's Day is for her multi-generational family. This Mother's Day she will begin dinner with a do-ahead three leaf mixed green salad, consisting of varied greens, cucumber, carrot curls, plum tomatoes, provolone cheese, black olives and sunflower seeds with balsamic dressing. A Long Island caterer, Jacqueline's company, Dolci Italiani, specializes in Italian and international cuisine, featuring "enchanting desserts."

There are a number of terrific specialty food stores on the East End featuring an array of delicious desserts to complete your celebratory meal. Have a sweet Mother's Day.

MARINATED SCALLOPS WITH ASIAN VINAIGRETTE

Wash and spin-dry the salad greens up to one day ahead, marinate the scallops briefly before cooking, quickly saute then drizzle with a lively vinaigrette.

Serves 4

For the salad
1 medium head radicchio
1 bunch watercress
Handful of mache or red leaf lettuce
1 large endive

For the vinaigrette
1 tablespoon finely grated ginger, about 1 1/2-inch piece, peeled
2 1/2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons peanut oil
Coarse (kosher) salt
2 teaspoons dark sesame seed oil
1 - 1 /12 pounds even-sized sea scallops, sinews removed
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 tablespoons light soy sauce

1. Wash radicchio, watercress and mache or leaf lettuce separately in a salad spinner and spin dry. Spread on a length of paper towels and roll up. Put into zip-lock storage bags and refrigerate up to several hours or overnight. Do not wash endive until ready to use.

2. Prepare vinaigrette: put ginger, vinegar and lemon juice in a small bowl. Whisk in the combined oils and season with salt to taste. Add the sesame oil and stir to mix. Pour into a glass screw-top jar and set aside.

3. Pull off the sinew attached to the side of the scallops and discard. Rinse scallops then pat dry with paper towels. Put in a bowl and toss with garlic and soy sauce to coat up to 20 minutes before cooking.

4. Bring greens to room temperature if refrigerated and put into a large salad bowl. Rinse and dry the endive and cut into rings directly over the greens. When ready to dress the salad, shake the vinaigrette, pour over the greens and toss vigorously to mix. Taste to adjust dressing as necessary.

5. Heat a non-stick skillet with a film of oil for several minutes. When hot, put in the scallops in one layer. Saute about 1 minute, turn with tongs and saute for 30-40 seconds longer until lightly browned on each side. Place 4-6 scallops on the rim of each plate in a clockwise pattern. Spoon over pan juice and serve at once.

GRILLED HERBED CHICKEN WITH SALAD TOPPING

Serves 6-8

10-12 skinless and boneless chicken breast halves
1 1/2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves
1 1/2 teaspoons fresh oregano leaves
1 1/2 teaspoon fresh rosemary leaves
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper
1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil

For the salad
1 medium red onion cut into small dice
1/4 cup coarsely chopped flat leaf-Italian parsley
1 firm head radicchio leaves, rinsed and spin-dried
1 bunch chicory, rinsed and spin-dried
1 Belgian endive, rinsed and cut into rings

For the vinaigrette
2 shallots finely chopped
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
6 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Coarse (kosher) salt

1. Trim, rinse and pat chicken breasts dry. Combine herbs in a mixing bowl with garlic, pepper and oil and stir to mix. Arrange chicken breasts in a non-corrosive (glass or ceramic) dish that will hold them in layers and pour over the marinade. Distribute the marinade to coat the breasts. Cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight.

2. Prepare salad topping. Dice onion and chop parsley and refrigerate separately in plastic containers. After the greens are washed and spin-dried roll them in paper towels to absorb excess moisture. Refrigerate overnight, covered in plastic bags.

3. Prepare vinaigrette. Combine shallots, vinegar, lemon juice and salt to taste in a mixing bowl. Gradually whisk in the oil. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. If preparing ahead place in a screw top jar and refrigerate overnight.

4. Preheat a gas grill to medium or a grill with ashen hot coals. When hot, grill chicken breasts about 4-5 minutes on each side until golden brown, turning once until springy to the touch. Transfer to warm plates.

5. Meanwhile, tear salad greens into large bite sized pieces into a salad bowl and add the onion and endive rings. Toss to coat evenly with the vinaigrette. Place 1-2 chicken breast halves on warm plates. Arrange the colorful salad over the top and serve at once.

DOLCI THREE LEAF GREEN SALAD

Here is Jacqueline Savino's recipe for a colorful and abundant special occasion salad.

Serves 10-12

1 half head each of 3 leafy greens, romaine, curly endive, Boston or bibb lettuce, etc.
1 large cucumber, sliced 1/4 inch thick and quartered
1 large carrot, scraped with vegetable peeler into curls
1 - (16-ounce jar) hearts of palm, drained and sliced 1/4-inch thick
4 ripe plum tomatoes, sliced 1/4 inch thick
1/4 pound provolone cheese, cut into small dice
1 can pitted black olives
2 cups toasted croutons, preferably your own
1/2 cup shelled unsalted sunflower seeds

For the vinaigrette

To prepare the dressing you will need 3 parts extra-virgin olive oil to 1 part balsamic vinegar, a pinch of sugar and salt and pepper to taste. For the above amount proceed with:
1 1/2 - 2 tablespoons vinegar
4-6 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
Pinch sugar
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Wash greens, separately in a salad spinner and spin-dry. Spread on a length of paper towel and roll up to absorb excess moisture. Can be done ahead, place in plastic zip-lock bags and refrigerate up to several hours or overnight.

2. Whisk vinegar and oil together in a small bowl. Season to taste with sugar, salt and pepper. Prepare additional dressing as needed according to the amount of lettuce you are using.

3. When ready to serve, bring the greens to room temperature, if refrigerated and place in a large mixing or salad bowl. Dress the salad with enough vinaigrette and vigorously toss to coat the leaves. Add cucumber, carrot curls, hearts of palm, tomatoes, 1/4 pound provolone cheese, cut into small dice, black olives and croutons and gently toss. Divide salad equally, garnish each plate with sunflower seeds and serve at once.

Silvia Lehrer will give a hands-on workshop, "Working with Phyllo" on Saturday, May 19 from 10:15 a.m. - 2:15 p.m. This in-depth class will cover the history, techniques and tips for success in working with phyllo. A medley of timely and useful recipes with a variety of fillings will be prepared. Students' lunch on the dishes prepared and take home samples of each. Class size is limited. Fee: $75. Call 631-537-7831 for registration or e-mail Silvia at Cookhamptn@aol.com.

Forget Washington. Cherry Trees Are In Bloom On The East End

By Susan Simm

Have you ever driven past a house, seen a spectacular flowering tree in someone's yard and wondered where they got it or what it was? Well if you have, I recently had the opportunity to speak with someone you should get to know. Barbara Rizzi, the manager at Whitmore's Nursery in Water Mill, gave me a tour of their flowering trees and shrubs and lots of information about the different varieties, colors and shapes that these plants can achieve.

First, some background. Whitmore's was started in Amagansett many years ago and has expanded over the years to include a nursery in Water Mill (opened three years ago), 100 acres of nursery stock in East Hampton and 80 acres of nursery in Orient on the North Fork. And they need all that acreage because there are many, many, many different varieties, colors and plant habits to choose from. "It is important that customers know the Latin name for the tree they want, or at least a recognizable culivar name so that you can make sure that you get the right plant. There are so many different varieties," Barbara said. But for the most popular trees, the common name will do just fine.

"We've sold a lot of weeping cherries this year. Snow Fountain is one of the varieties we like the best," said Barbara.

The most well known of the flowering cherries are the Japanese varieties, such as Kwanzan, Yosheino and Autumnalis. Each has its own characteristics. Kwanzan is an upright, vase-shaped tree with deep pink flowers that are very popular here on East End. Many of our local specimens are quite mature and there are many blooming all over right now and they are slowing shedding their beautiful pink petals all over our roads and walkways, like confetti. The others are different shades of pink and vary from upright to spreading (where the head is wider at the top). Snow Fountain, mentioned above as a popular choice, is a white flowered, weeping cherry.

"These trees are just starting to bloom. If you want to see some of our native Black cherries in bloom, take

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

Joe Gergela, Executive Director of LIFB, is away, and in his stead this week's article was written by Becky Wiseman, Associate Director.

Spring! Just that word brings a flood of memories to mind. As a little girl I would follow my father early in the morning as he turned the soil over for our vegetable garden. Together we held the string taught from both ends to make straight rows, then kneel and drop the seeds into the little path we had made with our hoe. The fresh clean smell of the soil, the feel of corn kernels as they slipped between my fingers, and the pastel color of the 'Kentucky Wonder' beans, linger in my mind. Later we would drive to the local feed store to buy our tomato, cucumber and green pepper plants. I was careful to mound the hills for the cucumbers, three plants to a hill, and make sure the tomato plants were not too close together. Then we would bring the garden hose over and water everything. I loved this part of spring. Growing up in southern Indiana in the early 1960s, my parents and I relied on the vegetables we planted to see us through the winter months.

Our life was integrally connected to the soil. Not just my family, but most of our community gardened and raised their own beef, pork and chickens. We didn't have any animals, but every year went to Harley Hasler's farm for butchering day. At the end of the day after all the fresh pork was wrapped in white paper, tied with red and white butcher's string and placed in the deep freeze, we would have a feast. Ready to go home, Harley would fill our arms with white packages of meat and a promise for one of the legs of ham hanging in the smokehouse. As I write about my life in the little town of Sumner when the days of spring were forever long, it sounds so romantic. How quickly I can forget the hard work, the hot sultry days; the cloying smell of the pigpen, and my mother's allergies to dust, corn and the pollen. Yet those early relationships and yearly family routines helped shape my life. Now I am the Associate Director of the Long Island Farm Bureau. Here we do not grow hogs, and most of us do not have huge backyard gardens with our yearly supply of vegetables. Still, I love spring when the flowers begin their blooming, the robins return and the air smells green. I consider myself privileged to work for and with some of the oldest farming families in New York. The time for preparing the soil and planting has begun on Long Island. Each spring holds the promise of a new year. I appreciate and respect the farmers' commitment, their struggle and their courage to weather the heavenly and financial storms.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

About Face: Canned Tans And Foot Pledge

Connie of Somerville New Jersey wants to know the best tanning product available on the market. Well, Connie, there are several and all have good results if used correctly and if your skin is prepared properly beforehand.

We all are now well aware of the damage sun can do without blockage. Dermatologist's offices are seeing more and more cases of skin cancers now that the baby boomers are showing up at the door. Don't forget, this is the generation that had Annette and Frankie as their summer idols with all the beach parties. The Beach Boys tunes rang from every radio parked on the blankets.

Well, you can stop worrying about skin cancers and wrinkles. You can tan safely with the proper products and techniques.

Before you start, you must exfoiliate your skin, with a loofah, or coarse washcloth, even a soft brush as a vegetable brush will do. Use a skin cleanser with moisturizer, like DOVE MOISTURIZING BODY SOAP. Pay special attention to knees, backs of heels, elbows, anywhere the skin would tend to be thicker. Dry well-self tanner and water don't mix.

Apply moisturizer first so that your tanning lotion goes on smoothly. Don't go heavy with the tanning lotion, spray or cream the first day. If you are not satisfied with the color intensity, you can always apply more the following day. Blot more of the product over the elbow, heels etc. And finally mix a little moisturizer with the tanning lotion again for a more natural effect on your face and hands. Be careful to stay away from fabrics that you don't want stained at this time. The ingredient dihydroxyacetone can stain cotton sheets and clothing. Make sure you wash your palms well. If you notice a slip up or unnatural staining, dab a little SEA BREEZE on the offending area. If you find you have missed a spot .. you can carefully apply more with a gloved hand, covering only the missed area.

NEUTROGENA SUNLESS TANNING SPRAY works great and is 'up there' on the list. It dries fast and produces a nice gold tan. Take note, if you are near BJ's, they are offering a two for the price of one. The spray and the cream.

VINCENT LONGO BRONZER is an excellent product for that bronzed effect. It does well on fair skin and never gives that DayGlo Orange look.

BAIN de SOLEIL'S STREAK GUARD is great for helping those who have trouble seeing where they have applied the product. It is dark and you can see where you have put it.

ORIGINS SUNNY DISPOSITION gives your face a sun kissed look without looking overly tan or made up. Use this with a little powdered bronzer and you are all set.

There are many other ways to give the illusion of a great tan. The corals and pinks always lend a credible look to a summer tan. Also the same goes for gold, bronzes and silvers for the toes and fingers. Look into a tooth whitening polish at this time. You can achieve this tanned look without the ravages of the sun, just do a little experimenting and the look will be all yours.

I was sent this great little footnote by a friend here at Dan's, who else but that Shop til You Drop Editor, Maria T... I had to pass it on, thanks Maria, I am sure we all recognize at least one of these lines as our own!

Summer Shoes Pledge

Please raise your big toes and repeat after me: As a member of the Cute Girl Sisterhood, I pledge to follow the rules when Iwear sandals and other open-toe shoes. I promise to always wear sandals that fit. My toes will not hang over and touch the ground, nor will my heels spill over the backs. And the sides and tops of my feet will not pudge out between the straps. I will go polish-free or vow to keep the polish fresh, intact and chip-free. I will not cheat and just touch up my big toe.

I will sand down any mounds of skin before they turn hard and yellow.

I will shave the hairs off my big toe.

I won't wear pantyhose even if my misinformed girlfriend, coworker, mother, sister tells me the toe seam really will stay under my toes if I tuck it there.

If a strap breaks, I won't duct-tape, pin, glue or tuck it back into place hoping it will stay put. I will get my shoe fixed or toss it. I will not live in corn denial, rather I will lean on my good friend Dr. Scholls if my feet need him.

I will resist the urge to buy jelly shoes at Payless for the low, low price of $4.99 even if my feet are small enough to fit into the kids' sizes. This is out of concern for my safety, and the safety of others. No one can walk properly when standing in a pool of sweat and I would hate to take someone down with me as I fall and break my ankle.

I will take my toe ring off toward the end of the day if my toes swell and begin to look like Vienna sausages.

If I have been privvy to the magic that is Foot Soup, I will share that knowledge and experience with the non-initiated.

I will be brutally honest with my girlfriend/sister/coworker when she asks me if her feet are too ugly to wear sandals. Someone has to tell her that her toes are as long as my fingers and no sandal makes creepy feet look good.

This is my summer shoe pledge to you.

POLICE BLOTTER

There's fast food, there's fast shopping. At the Sterns in Hampton Bays, two men, witnesses said were in their twenties, grabbed $780 worth of clothing and fled from the store.

Someone wanted a twelve pack of Heineken enough to try to pass off the ID of another individual. After allegedly presenting a University of Central Florida ID card, it was noted by the proprietor that the photo on the ID was clearly not the bearer, who was placed under arrest for criminal impersonation and for possession of alcohol under 21.

A rowdy customer made things unpleasant for the patrons of Bobby Van's in Bridgehampton, one Sunday evening. A bartender had locked a certain gentleman out of the restaurant after he drank the drink of one customer and hit another in the face. But the gentleman did not accept such banishment and broke the glass door of the restaurant; this resulted in his being charged with criminal mischief in the fourth degree.

In more restaurant rowdiness, a patron at Barrister's in Southampton was charged with a misdemeanor for fondling a woman on the premises.

This had to be pocket change. P. Diddy, the artist formerly known as Puff Daddy, paid a $300 fine in East Hampton Town court. The crime: giving a loud party last Labor Day weekend.

In East Hampton, a former tenant apparently does not think of himself as a former tenant. After his lease was up, which had expired at the end of March, the owner of the motel at which the tenant had resided said the tenant had been sneaking back into room. Apparently he had not turned in the key. He would park his car at one end of the property, hop a fence, then proceed to the room.

As Warner Wolfe says, let's go to the video tape. A woman told East Hampton Town police she had dropped about $280 in bills at the Hess station in Wainscott. She realized the money was missing when she arrived at the Starbucks in Bridgehampton. She returned to the Hess station where a videotape was viewed that showed someone picking up the money, counting it, and putting it in his pocket. The complainant did not want to press charges but has attempted to contact the person who pocketed her money – thus far with negative results.

DEAR DAN,

So many thanks to Susan Simm for that perfectly marvelous article regarding our showhouse. It was wonderfully written, informative and very interesting.

We are very grateful.

CLIFF FLAT ON FIFTH
Dear Dan,

Have returned from the Hollywood vineyards to find atop my beladen-begotten desk, eight feet of accumulated mail. At the very top, near the swishing tail of my cat, Halsey, was this week's Dan's Papers with the South O' the Highway mention of my costarring in Spider Man with Tobey McGuire. Thanks for the mention and thanks, as always, for the accuracy. Spent the last day of the shoot flat on my back for twelve hours implanted on the sidewalk of the New York Public Library. Obviously, a death scene with Tobey.

I mention this in case of my fellow Long Islanders wondered "What happened to Cliff? He was flat on his back on Fifth Avenue."

Also finishing up my fifty-eighth film The Curse of the 13th Child shot in the Pinewoods of southern New Jersey. This will be released some time in the late summer or early fall. As for Spider Man, look for his web in about a year.

As for a former journalist for a daily rag (Cox's Springfield Daily News in Ohio), I can appreciate what a job it is to get your paper out. You and your staff do good work and this actor/writer/director and former journalist appreciates it.

Keep up the good work.

Cherry

a ride down Further Lane in East Hampton. They are putting on a spectacular display right now. Those trees have seeded themselves and have been there for years. They are beautiful," Barbara added. Black cherries are also a fairly common site in our farm hedgerows.

Another popular, cultivated cherry variety is the Higan cherry. The Higan variety is larger than the Kwanzan and Mt. Fuji cherries and it has a more upright habit. "You see them often in front yards," said Barbara. "Mt. Fuji cherries are white and they do not grow quite as tall."

In addition to cherries, Whitmore offers flowering pear, crabapple, plum, shad (serviceberry, which is a native) and magnolia. They carry native and non-native varieties of trees and shrubs. Most of the pear varieties are offshoots of the popular Bradford pear. "We suggest using the Arisocrat variety of Bradford pear because the tree is more upright and the branching habit prevents cracking which can be a problem in other pear varieties," Barbara mentioned. Flowering pears have white flowers and the trees are generally large upright trees.

Crabapples will be in bloom soon, right after the cherries finish. Barbara cautions customers about planting them because, "they are disease prone. Rust and blight will attack them and some people don't like the small fruit falling on their grass in the fall." But the varieties carried by Whitmores are more disease-resistant than most and the flowers are lovely. They currently have a row of weeping crabapples to choose from (about 6-7 feet tall) which are all about to burst into bloom. This variety has very small fruit so it will not make a mess on your lawn.

I had never heard of a serviceberry, or shad, tree. "We have native shad, which has a beautiful silvery bark and white fuzzy flowers," Barbara explained. "It can be trimmed and tends to have a nice form to it."

Flowering plum trees and magnolias, which can come in tree or shrub form, are also popular. "We like the Thundercloud variety of plum tree," said Barbara. "They have beautiful red foliage. And as for magnolias, "the saucer variety has large, striking flowers. [Many examples of these dot lawns in the Hamptons.] The other important variety, star magnolia, has more petal-like flowers and is a shrub, although it can pruned into a tree shape."

As Barbara mentions above, weeping cherries are very popular this year, but pears also continue to be in demand. "People generally have an idea of what they're looking for," she said. "They have usually seen a tree somewhere locally that they would like to plant on their own property."

Once you have an idea about what color and shape you're after, then what's next? Whitmores offers valuable advice you may not have considered. "Many people, for instance, don't plant a tree in their yard with a mature tree in mind. You need to remember that the tree is going to get bigger," Barbara said.

Whitmore's can help you with all aspects of landscape design, plant selection and planting. "We guarantee the tree or shrub for one year if we plant it and the planting charge is 40 percent of the retail price of the tree." Whitmores will deliver and plant your tree from Montauk to East Quogue and design costs are determined on an individual basis.

"So that the Earth may be healed"
Farms, Horse Pastures, Golf Courses, Residential, Commercial, Schools, Churches, Large Acreage or Small, Turf, Trees, Scrubs, Wherever Plants Grow In Soil!!!

Give your landscape a treat. Ten years of research and development is now available for your property and farm. You now have an option for beautiful landscapes and farms without the use of soil destroying fertilizers and toxic chemicals. Organics by neglect is no longer necessary. These Organic products produce the healthiest soil for the healthiest plants that will repel pests and dis-ease. My organic methods are the best for your soils. Call for a consultation today.

The Largest Selection of Real Estate Properties for Rent on The East End

By Dan Rattiner

Haven't yet decided which house to rent in the Hamptons for the summer? We've had a long, hard winter and the economy has been down and then back up as we all know, and the result of all this is that there are many bargain rentals to be had throughout the Hamptons as we come down to the wire…which is Memorial Day Weekend.

Because of this unique situation, and because Dan's Papers has the largest section of listings for both rental and sales of properties on the East End, we've decided to offer our usual early May real estate supplement in the paper for two consecutive weeks. These two weeks are the one you are reading, May 11 and the one following, May 18.

We are hopeful that we can put together many buyers and sellers in this section. May all your dreams come true.

HOW SWEET IT IS

Lilacs and lavendar, the sweet smell of cut grass, all lend this lovely farmhouse its ambiance of "country" that is becoming rare. On shy acre in grand old historical village, home is only a decade old...a decade of tender love and care. 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, 2,500sq. ft. of living space. Room for pool. Irrigation system. Expansive decking. Hardwood floors, fireplace, central air. This home is proof you can be in a "happening place" and still get away from it all.
